Supreme Court Rules Refusal to Initial an Agreement Reached Is Refusal to Bargain Collectively and an Unfair Practice.

Decision Approves Claims of 50 Million Against Germany in World War Explosions—Oil Proration Held Legal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—The United States Supreme Court today said that the Labor Board has authority to require a company to sign a written contract with a labor organization in the event an agreement is reached concerning employment conditions.

In another important decision the court upheld the validity of $100,000,000 damage awards against Germany by the German-American Claims Commission as a result of the destructive Black Tom and Kingsland (N. J.) explosions before the United States entered the World War.

In a third decision the court upheld the Texas Railroad Commission orders pro-rating the production of oil in the large East Texas field.

The court also decided that a federal district court which has decided litigation in conformity with existing state law, should change its decision if the state law is subsequently altered.

No Dismiss in Labor Case. Justice Stone delivered the decision in the Labor Board case brought by the H. J. Heinz Co. of Pittsburgh to test the board's authority under the Wagner Labor Act. No dismissal was announced, Justice McReynolds did not participate.

The company contended an agreement reached with a local union of the Canning and Pickle Workers (AFL) had been "reduced to writing in the form of an official bulletin and posted on the bulletin boards."

It said the agreement was still in effect and that the obligations of the Wagner Act had been met. The Labor Board order, the company contended, constituted a command to make a substitute contract.

The Sixth Federal Circuit Court, in upholding the board's order, said that the company's refusal to sign a contract amounted to a refusal to bargain. Contrary decisions had been delivered by other circuit courts.

The board also directed the company to disestablish the Heinz Employee Association, a union of company employees, even though the company already had recognized the union and Pickle Workers following an election.

"An Unfair Practice." Refusal to sign an agreement reached, Justice Stone said, "was refusal to bargain collectively" and "an unfair labor practice."

"It is true," he added, "that the National Labor Act, while requiring the employer to bargain collectively, does not compel him to enter into an agreement."

"But it does not follow that, having reached an agreement, he can refuse to sign it, because he has never agreed to sign one."

"He may never have agreed to sign the statute requires him to do so. To that extent his freedom is restricted in order to secure the legislative objective of curtailing labor disputes affecting interstate commerce."

The freedom of the employer to refuse to make an agreement relates to its terms in matters of substance and not, once it is reached, to its expression in a signed contract, the absence of which, as experience has shown, tends to frustrate the end sought by the requirement for collective bargaining."

The Black Tom Case. Chief Justice Hughes delivered the Black Tom opinion, which held that payment to American claimants must be made because a certificate by the Secretary of State ordering such action "must be deemed to be conclusive."

"We do not need to consider," Justice Hughes said, "whether Congress could commit to the judiciary the determination of the validity of the challenged claims, for Congress has not done so, but made payment out of the fund held upon the Secretary's certificate."

AMY MOLLISON

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—British authorities said tonight that Amy Johnson Mollison, one of Britain's outstanding women flyers and the divorced wife of James A. Mollison, trans-Atlantic flyer, probably was drowned yesterday in the Thames estuary after bailing out of a plane she was ferrying for the Air Transport Auxiliary.

An unsuccessful search for her was made by the Royal Air Force and a speedboat after she had bailed out and her plane was seen to dive into the sea.

All that was found were the flight authorization papers for her machine, which was off its course.

MOLASKY IS GIVEN
18 MONTHS IN TAX
CASE; $10,000 FINERacing News Distributor
Sentenced on Plea of Guilty of Evading U. S.
Income Levies.

William Molasky, racing news distributor, who pleaded guilty Nov. 30 of Federal income tax evasion and later paid the Government $181,000 in full settlement of his civil liability, was sentenced to 18 months in a Federal penitentiary and fined the maximum of $10,000 by United States District Judge Charles E. Davis today.

When the court pronounced sentence, Molasky pleaded, then denied, and staggered as the United States Marshal led him from the courtroom. His two sons, one a first-year student at Washington University, the other a senior student at Western Military Academy, Alton, took his arms and helped him outside the room.

After the sentencing Molasky's counsel went to Judge Davis' chambers and made a plea for probation. Judge Davis told reporters he had received a report on Molasky from probation officers and reminded the reporters he had said in court that his judgment was final.

United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton said that Molasky's net income for the four-year period as finally determined was $394,054.

The settlement was for a total of $124,034 in taxes evaded in the years 1933 to 1936, inclusive, plus penalties and interest. Molasky's plea of guilty was to one count of the indictment, charging evasion of $97,800 in 1936. The three other counts were dismissed, as was a charge in which Molasky was accused of evading $27,457 of taxes in connection with operation of the Pioneer News Service with Paul (Beverly) Brown and Clarence L. (Gully) Owen.

Blanton, relating that Molasky had engaged in the wire service, liquor and vending machine business, told of the means by which he had evaded taxes, asserting that "case involves practically every type of manipulation encountered."

About 80 Pct. of World Supply
Of Monetary Gold Is Now in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Treasury's gold stock today passed $22,000,000,000, roughly 80 per cent of all the monetary gold in the world.

Gold has been coming into New York so fast since the European war began that it was taxing the huge vault space there, and special armored trains are making secret trips to Fort Knox, Ky., to put some of it underground in the Treasury's special depository there.

The flow has been slowing in late 1940, but the previous speed was shown by the fact that when the Former Festus Bank Officers Sentenced on Charges of Making False Reports to FDIC.

EX-PRESIDENT DENIED
BOND DURING APPEAL

U. S. Judge Collet Says, However, He Is Willing to Hear Further Arguments on Question.

Norville W. Brickey, former president of the Citizens' Bank of Festus, was sentenced today to serve two and one-half years in prison, on his conviction for making false reports of the bank's condition to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. United States District Judge John Caskie Collet pronounced the sentence, and said that Brickey should not be admitted to bail, pending his appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals. He consented, however, to hear further arguments on the question of bail bond.

Charles E. Porter, former vice-president of the same bank, who was indicted with Brickey, and who pleaded guilty to the false report charge and was the Government's chief witness against Brickey, was sentenced by Judge Collet to 18 months imprisonment. An equal sentence was imposed on Porter's plea of guilty in an embezzlement case in which he testified against Brickey in Judge Charles E. Davis' court a year ago, in which Brickey was acquitted.

The two sentences were made to run concurrently, making Porter's term 18 months in all. As he pleaded guilty, no question of appeal or appeal bond arose in Porter's case.

A statement as to Porter was made to the court by David M. Robinson, Assistant United States Attorney. He said Porter had cooperated with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the FDIC since the discovery of a shortage in the bank, and had appeared three times as a witness for the Government.

Tells of Brickey's Record. Roscoe Anderson, Brickey's counsel, reminded the court of Brickey's high standing in Jefferson County, where he was formerly president of the county court; he was also former Mayor of Festus.

Anderson argued that "nobody lost a cent" by the bank shortage, that the $80,000 shortage was not conceivably come to the administration's defense, which would be an ironic situation.

New Yorker Asserts Some News Stories Have Tended to Show His Activities in False Light.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler said today that he would shortly call before a special Senate committee of which he is chairman, William Rhodes Davis, independent oil operator, in an effort to determine Davis' role in mysterious peace negotiations with Nazi Germany shortly after the outbreak of the war in Europe.

The Montana Senator, who is one of the most active critics of the administration's foreign policy, said he would question Davis both on his so-called peace mission to Rome and Berlin, in September, 1939, and on the barter deals he negotiated between Mexico and Germany.

While Wheeler would not fix a definite date for the hearing at which Davis will testify, he indicated it would be within the next two weeks. Davis in an interview in New York yesterday said he had asked Wheeler for the privilege of testifying, asserting that recent newspaper reports had tended to show his activities in a false light.

Composition of Committee. The committee of which Wheeler is chairman was formed at his instigation of members of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee of which Wheeler is also chairman. It includes Senators Johnson of Colorado and Bone of Washington, both Democrats who have been critical of the administration's aid to Britain.

The other Democrat is Senator Truman of Missouri. Republican members are Austin of Vermont, White of Maine and Reed of Kansas.

If Davis is able to show—perhaps through disclosure of the "peace terms" he brought back from Germany—that Roosevelt ignored a bona fide peace move, Wheeler and Johnson can be expected to make the most of it. Austin is rated as an interventionist and might conceivably come to the administration's defense, which would be an ironic situation.

The special investigative task of the Wheeler committee is defined only in the vaguest terms as being concerned with what may "delay or interfere with the national debt."

PRESIDENT TO ASK FOR NEW TAXES TO PAY FOR DEFENSE

NO ONE SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO GET RICH FROM CRISIS, HE SAYS

Tells Congress Another Guiding Principle Should Be Citizens' Ability to Meet Levies — States Policy and Aims.

Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia, he addressed himself to Americans: "In times like these it is immature and incidentally untrue—for anybody to brag that an unprepared America, single-handed and with one hand behind its back, can hold off the whole world. "No realistic American can expect from a dictator's peace international generosity, or return of true independence, or world disarmament, or freedom of expression, or freedom of religion—or even good business. "Quoting from Benjamin Franklin, that 'those who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety, deserve neither liberty nor safety,' the President continued: "As a nation we may take pride in the fact that we are soft-hearted; but we cannot afford to be soft-headed. "We must always be wary of those who with sounding brass and tinkling cymbal preach the 'ism' of appeasement. "We must especially beware of that small group of selfish men who would clip the wings of the American Eagle in order to feather their own nests."

Danger in Latin America.

Having noted that the British fleet had been and still is a "friendly strength," the President said that even if there were no British navy, it was improbable that any enemy would be so stupid as to try to land troops in this country until it had acquired bases. And while he did not directly say that those bases would be sought in Latin America, he declared that "the necessary strategic points would be occupied by secret agents and their dupes—and great numbers of them are already here and in Latin America."

It is for this reason, he added, that "the future of all American republics is today in serious danger."

The President laid down a three-plank national policy, each plank predicated on "an impressive expression of public will and without regard to partisanship." These were: (1) An all-inclusive national defense; (2) full support to those resolute peoples who are keeping us away from this hemisphere; (3) no acquiescence to a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers.

Not Satisfied With Speed.

The President admitted that he was not satisfied with national defense production and "the slowness of the accomplishment of our plans."

"We must all prepare," he declared, "to make the sacrifices that the emergency—as serious as war itself—demands. Whatever stands in the way of speed and efficiency in defense preparations must give way to national need."

Those who refuse to co-operate, and cannot be shamed by patriotic example, were threatened with the sovereignty of government used to save government itself.

Asserting that social and economic problems are the root cause of the world-wide social revolution, the President outlined a domestic program: "which would continue this New Deal. The 'basic things' expected, he said, were: 1. Equality of opportunity for youth and for others. 2. Jobs for all those who need work. 3. Security for those who need it. 4. The ending of special privileges for the few. 5. The preservation of civil liberties for all. 6. The enjoyment of the fruits of scientific progress in a wider and constantly rising standard of living. Unlike other annual messages, today's contained no hint of what taxes would be recommended in the budget to be presented Wednesday.

Higher Taxes Necessary.

The emergency expenditures, he said, would mean the payment of more money in taxes. The budget message, he disclosed, would ask that a greater portion of the defense program be paid for from taxation than we are paying today.

"If Congress maintains these principles, the voters, putting patriotism ahead of pocketbooks, will give you their applause," he told the joint session.

The President closed his address with a picture of a new world founded on four essential human freedoms—freedom of speech and expression, of religion, from want and from fear. This new moral order, he declared, would be the very antithesis of the so-called new order of tyranny which dictators seek to create with the crash of a bomb. With that high concept in mind, he concluded the American people could be assured there could be no end save victory.

Text of Roosevelt's Message to Congress on State of the Union did threaten interests of the United States because of the French foothold in the West Indies and in Louisiana, and while we engaged in the War of 1812 to vindicate our right to peaceful trade, it is, nevertheless, clear that neither France nor Great Britain nor any other nation was aiming at domination of the whole world.

In like fashion from 1815 to 1914—99 years—no single war in Europe or in Asia constituted a real threat against our future or against the future of any other American nation.

Except in the Maximilian interlude in Mexico, no foreign Power sought to establish itself in this hemisphere; and the strength of the British fleet in the Atlantic has been a friendly strength. It is still a friendly strength.

Even when the World War broke out in 1914, it seemed to contain only small threat of danger to our American future. But, as time went on, the American people began to visualize what the downfall of democratic nations might mean to our own democracy.

We need not over-emphasize imperfections in the peace of Versailles. We need not harp on failure of the democracies to deal with problems of world reconstruction. We should remember that the peace of 1919 was far less unjust than the kind of "pacification" which began even before Munich, and which is being carried on under the new order of tyranny that seeks to spread over every continent today. The American people have unalterably set their faces against that tyranny.

Democracy Attacked in All Parts of World.

Every realist knows that the democratic life in this moment being directly assailed in every part of the world—assailed either by arms, or by secret spreading of poisonous propaganda by those who seek to destroy unity and promote discord in nations still at peace.

During 16 months this assault has blotted out the whole pattern of democratic life in an appalling number of independent nations, great and small. The assaults are still on the march, threatening other nations, great and small.

Therefore, as your President, performing my constitutional duty to "give to the Congress information of the state of the union," I find it necessary to report that the future of our democracy is overhanging involved in events far beyond our borders.

Armed defense of democratic existence is now being gallantly waged in four continents. If that defense fails, all the population and all the resources of Europe, Asia, Africa and Australasia will be dominated by the conquerors. The total of those populations and resources greatly exceeds the sum total of the population and resources of the whole of the Western Hemisphere—many times over.

In times like these it is immature and incidentally untrue—for anybody to brag that an unprepared America, single-handed, and with one hand behind its back, can hold off the whole world.

No realistic American can expect from a dictator's peace international generosity, or return of true independence, or world disarmament, or freedom of expression, or freedom of religion—or even good business. Such a peace would bring no security for us or for our neighbors. "Those who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety, deserve neither liberty nor safety."

As a nation we may take pride in the fact that we are soft-hearted; but we cannot afford to be soft-headed. We must always be wary of those who with sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal preach the "ism" of appeasement.

We must especially beware of that small group of selfish men who would clip the wings of the American eagle in order to feather their own nests.

Lesson for America

In Capture of Norway. I have recently pointed out how quickly the tempo of modern warfare could bring into our very midst the physical attack which we must expect if the dictator nations win this war.

There is much loose talk of our immunity from immediate and direct invasion from across the seas. Obviously, as long as the British navy retains its power, no such danger exists. Even if there were no British navy, it is not probable that any enemy would be stupid enough to attack us by landing troops in the United States from across thousands of miles of ocean, until it had acquired strategic bases from which to operate.

But we learn much from the lessons of the past years in Europe—particularly the lesson of Norway, whose essential seaports were captured by treachery and surprise built up over a series of years.

The first phase of the invasion of this hemisphere would not be the landing of regular troops. The necessary strategic points would be occupied by secret agents and their dupes—and great numbers of them are already here and in Latin America.

As long as the aggressor nations maintain the offensive, they—not we—will choose the time and the place and the method of their attack. That is why the future of all American republics is today in serious danger.

That is why this annual message

Highlights

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).

HIGHLIGHTS in President Roosevelt's annual message to Congress:

I address you . . . at a moment unprecedented in the history of the Union. I use the word "unprecedented," because at no previous time has American security been so seriously threatened from without as it is today.

No realistic American can expect from a dictator's peace international generosity, or return of true independence, or world disarmament, or freedom of expression, or freedom of religion—or even good business.

As a nation we take pride in the fact that we are soft-hearted; but we cannot afford to be soft-headed.

The first phase of the invasion of this Hemisphere would not be the landing of regular troops. The necessary strategic points would be occupied by secret agents and their dupes—and great numbers of them are already here, and in Latin America.

As long as the aggressor nations maintain the offensive, they—not we—will choose the time and the place and the method of their attack.

The immediate need is a swift and driving increase in our armament production.

I am not satisfied with the progress thus far made. . . . We are behind schedule in turning out finished airplanes; we are working day and night to solve the innumerable problems and to catch up.

earned in your defense of freedom. We are putting forth our energies, our resources, and our organizing powers to give you the strength to regain and maintain a free world. We shall send you, in ever increasing numbers, ships, planes, tanks, guns. This is our purpose and our pledge."

Dictators, When Ready, Won't Await Act of War.

In fulfillment of this purpose we will not be intimidated by the threats of dictators that they will regard as a breach of international law and as an act of war our aid to the democracies which dare to resist their aggression. Such aid is not an act of war, even if a dictator should unilaterally proclaim it so to be.

When the dictators are ready to make war upon us, they will not wait for an act of war on our part. They did not wait for Norway or Belgium or The Netherlands to commit an act of war.

Their only interest is in a new one-way international law, which lacks mutuality in its observance, and, therefore, becomes an instrument of oppression.

The happiness of future generations of Americans may well depend upon how effective and how immediate we can make our aid felt. No one can tell the exact character of the emergency situations that we may be called upon to meet. The nation's hands must not be tied when the nation's life is in danger.

We must all prepare to make the sacrifices that the emergency—as serious as war itself—demands. Whatever stands in the way of speed and efficiency in defense preparations must give way to the national need.

A free nation has the right to expect full cooperation from all groups. A free nation has the right to look to the leaders of business, of labor and of agriculture to take the lead in stimulating effort, not among other groups but within their own groups.

The best way of dealing with the few slackers or trouble makers in our midst is, first, to shame them by patriotic example, and, if that fails, to use the sovereignty of government to save government.

As men do not live by bread alone, they do not fight by armaments alone. Those who man our defenses, and those behind them who build our defenses, must have the stamina and courage which come from an unshakeable belief in the manner of life which they are defending. The mighty material which we are calling for cannot be based on a disregard of all things worth fighting for.

The nation takes great satisfaction and much strength from the things which have been done to make its people conscious of their individual stake in the preservation of democratic life in America. Those things have toughened the fiber of our people, have renewed their faith and strengthened their devotion to the institutions we make ready to protect.

Improvements Needed in Social Economy.

Certainly this is no time to stop thinking about the social and economic problems which are the root cause of the social revolution which is today a supreme factor in the world. There is nothing mysterious about the foundations of a healthy and strong democracy. The basic things expected by our people of their political and economic systems are simple. They are: Equality of opportunity for youth and for others. Jobs for those who can work. Security for those who need it. The ending of special privilege for the few.

The preservation of civil liberties for all. The enjoyment of the fruits of scientific progress in a wider and constantly rising standard of living. These are the simple and basic things that must never be lost sight of in the turmoil and unbelievable complexity of our modern world. The inner and abiding strength of our economic and political systems is dependent upon the degree to which they fulfill these expectations.

Many subjects connected with our social economy call for immediate improvement. As examples: We should bring more citizens under the coverage of old-age pensions and unemployment insurance. A part of the sacrifice means the payment of more money in taxes. In my budget message I recommended that a greater portion of this great defense program be paid for from taxation than we are paying today. No person should try, or be allowed, to get rich out of this program; and the principle of tax payments in accordance with ability to pay should be constantly before our eyes to guide our legislation.

If the Congress maintains these principles, the voters, putting patriotism ahead of pocketbooks, will give you their applause.

In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms.

The first is freedom of speech and expression—everywhere in the world.

The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way—everywhere in the world.

The third is freedom from want—which is translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy peace-time life for its inhabitants—everywhere in the world.

The fourth is freedom from fear—which, translated into world terms, means a world-wide reduction of armaments to such a point and such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor—anywhere in the world.

Congress Gives Prolonged Applause And Cheers to President's Message

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Before a joint session of Congress that gave him a prolonged applause and cheers for a speech packed with denunciation of dictator powers, President Roosevelt today delivered his annual message on the state of the Union.

Not only the House, the Senate and members of the Cabinet, but most of Washington's ranking diplomats listened to the President's grave analysis of the situation facing the nation today.

The President had read only three or four sentences when his reference to national unity brought applause. Roosevelt, his Caribbean tan fading to a gray pallor, read his address with firm seriousness, a standing in the floodlight from a battery of movie cameras set up in the gallery.

Franklin Quotation. Again when he asserted that "the American people have unalterably set their faces against the tyranny of the dictators," his audience applauded. His quotation from Benjamin Franklin, about those who were not willing to guard their rights, drew applause as did his reference to appeasers who would "feather their own nests" by "clipping the wings of the eagle."

Just behind the President sat beaming, red-faced Vice-President Garner, appearing for almost the last time in a public role. Beside him was the new Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn, also a Texan.

As the President progressed, detailing the difficulties of the rearmament program and the need for new appropriations, there were fewer interruptions. Senators and Congressmen sat in their grim silence as Roosevelt painted a picture that was not precisely optimistic.

One of the heartiest bursts of applause came for the President's statement that no one would be allowed to grow rich from the defense program. This remark tempered the gravity of the President's references to new taxes to be called for in his forthcoming budget message. Many diplomats in the gallery, an unprecedented number of whom reserved for foreign envoys, conspicuous in the front row was Sir John Dill, British chargé d'affaires, while the death of Lord Lothian, pending the arrival of the new ambassador, Lord Halifax.

Several nations conquered by Germany were represented, including the Minister de Morgenthau of the United States, who occupied a seat in the front row. Back of the Norwegian Minister was the Swedish envoy, Wollmar Bastian, with his wife. The representatives of Nazi Germany were conspicuous by their absence. By staying away they avoided what might well have been an embarrassing scene in the crowded little gallery.

Observers in the packed galleries singled out on the floor Denmark's Chief William S. Knudsen, who had a seat in the front row. He was greeted by many Senators and Representatives as the official audience waited for the President to appear to make his momentous address.

In the tense atmosphere Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Service operative took exception to the President's statement that the President would traverse on his way to the Speaker's stand.

FENSE

GO TO COURT IN DONNELL CONTEST

Party Likely to Ask Supreme Tribunal for Writ of Mandamus to Seat Republican.

WOULD RELY ON RULE SET BY CONSTITUTION

Successful Challenge of Authority Would Force Democrats to Formal Attack on Election.

By CURTIS A. BETTS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 6.—Immediate submission to the Missouri Supreme Court of the proposed contest of the election of Governor James M. Donnell, Republican, to the governorship, following the expected refusal of the Democratic-controlled Legislature to declare his election, is a strong possibility. It is known that attorneys for the Republican State Committee have prepared an exhaustive brief in support of the legality of court action.

The procedure would take the form of an application to the court for a writ of mandamus to compel the Speaker of the House of Representatives to announce the result of the election. If that should be successful the issuance of Donnell's certificate of election would follow as a matter of course.

Under the Constitution the Speaker is required immediately after the Legislature is organized to announce the vote cast for Governor and other State officers and the candidate for each office receiving the highest number of votes is declared elected.

The Democrats, in contesting Donnell's election, plan that there shall be no announcement of the result of the election for Governor, but that instead there shall be a legislative "investigation" for the purpose of ultimately seating Lawrence McDaniel.

The attorneys who have gone into the matter contend that the Speaker of the House has no choice. They contend that he is required by the Constitution to announce the candidate receiving the highest vote, that it is his duty and that if he fails to perform it he may be compelled by mandamus to do so.

Unless the present strategy is changed, Donnell will file a mandamus suit in the Supreme Court after the expected refusal of the Speaker to make the announcement of Donnell's election as Governor.

View on Court Action.

While the action would go before a Democratic Supreme Court, the attorneys are satisfied that it would be decided there according to law, and that the political influences which operate in the Legislature would be absent.

The effect of the success of a mandamus suit would be to seat Donnell and force the Democrats to file a formal contest, which they are attempting to avoid, if they continued with their effort to prevent Donnell from becoming Governor.

G. O. P. Fear of Legislature.

The Republican plan to get the question away from the Legislature, where the Democrats have a majority of 42 on joint ballot, and where, they fear, the cards are definitely stacked against them.

Members of the Legislature have begun to arrive for the session, which opens at noon Wednesday. There is a strained atmosphere in the hotel lobby gathering, a feeling of fear on the part of the Republicans as to what is about to happen to them, and of shame on the part of some of the Democrats over what they are about to do.

The indications point strongly to the election of Morris E. Osburn of Shelbyville to the speakership. Osburn is serving his fourth term in the House. His only opponent is Edmund R. Caldwell of Perry, serving his fifth term. Caldwell has substantial support, but major influences appear to be behind Osburn.

The new Speaker's first official duty will be to announce the result of the election on the returns submitted to him by the Secretary of State, and immediately he will be the center of one of the biggest political fights in the history of the State.

Two Tavern Owners Arrested for Operating Without License.

Frank J. Langley, proprietor, and two employees, Miss Eva Lawrence, waitress, and Albert Tobias, bartender, were arrested at Langley's restaurant, 4626 Gravois avenue, early yesterday for selling liquor without city or State licenses, after detective reported they had bought highballs.

Edward J. Godfrey, proprietor of a tavern at 8039 North Broadway, was arrested on the same charge yesterday after police observed a group of men entering a rear room at 8039 A. North Broadway, adjoining Godfrey's living quarters at 8039 A. Police said they found 17 men seated around tables in the room, a number of broken beer bottles on the floor, and three cases of beer in an icebox.

'CHIEF SOURCE' GETS 7 YEARS IN NARCOTICS CASE

John Vitale Pleads Guilty, as Does Woman and Man Employed in His Tavern—Latter on Probation.

John Vitale, described by narcotics agents as the "chief source" of supply for heroin sold by a ring of peddlers arrested in a series of raids here last September, was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary by United States District Judge John Caskie Collet today on his plea of guilty of violation of the Harrison Anti-Narcotic Act.

Rose Melham and her brother, Joe Melham, who were employed at Vitale's tavern, "Lionie's Buffet," at the northeast corner of Ninth street and Franklin avenue, and who were charged jointly with Vitale in four indictments, also pleaded guilty.

She was sentenced to two years, Melham to five years, but both were placed on probation after Assistant United States Attorney Herbert H. Freer told the Court their principal activity had been in delivering packages of the drug after sales had been made by Vitale.

Freer told Judge Collet the arrests of Vitale and 19 other persons last September was the result of an eight-month investigation which was ordered after agents reported there was a growing traffic in heroin here. Special agents were sent from Washington to aid the local investigation.

After several weeks devoted to making contacts, the agents learned that Vitale was the principal source of the drug for most of the peddlers here. One agent who won his confidence reported Vitale sold no amounts smaller than one ounce, charging from $80 to $90 for that amount.

MOLASKY IS GIVEN 18 MONTHS IN TAX CASE; $10,000 FINE

In the field of tax evasion," Blanton said, Molasky had not reported salaries and dividends which were paid ostensibly to others under his domination, padded payrolls and expense accounts of businesses he controlled and claimed false deductions for bad debts and other items.

David Baron, attorney for Molasky, made a plea for his client in which he said he thought Molasky had been punished enough. He reviewed Molasky's career, relating that he had started selling newspapers on downtown streets when he was 6 years old and was compelled to leave school when he was 12 to support his father and mother.

Top Annenberg Holding Firm Files Answer to Belleville Injunction.

The Cecelia Co., top holding company of the Moes Annenberg racing news enterprises, filed an answer in Circuit Court at Belleville today to the sweeping anti-gambling injunction issued by Judge Maurice V. Joyce last month, in which it alleged the injunction violated freedom of speech and of the press.

Operation of its three publications, the company asserted, was "entirely legal and not subject to restraint by court."

Its answer was one of a group filed by more than 100 of the 2500 defendants in the injunction action. Among other filing answers were the American Telephone Telegraph Co., Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and Postal Telegraph Co.

St. Louis Troops Move Into Tents While Supplies Roll in by Truck—Resort Atmosphere, but Real Work Starts Soon.

By OTTO FUERBRINGER
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAMP ROBINSON, Ark., Jan. 6.—"This is the damndest gold-plated army I ever saw," the Major said. He was standing by a window at Thirty-fifth Division headquarters, the division which includes the former St. Louis National Guard troops now in the regular army.

"Look at that road out there," he said. "Last night that was just a dirt road. When I woke up this morning, it was paved." And so it was, a fine chat and oil road running past the neat colonial buildings of headquarters. The Major couldn't restrain his enthusiasm. It wasn't just the paved roads all over camp and the magic by which they appeared. It wasn't just the slick gas heaters in every tent. There were other details.

"Have you seen our portable organs?" he asked. "One for each Chaplain to carry around." He led the way to the second floor of the building, which still smelled of freshly sawed pine. In the corner of the large room was an organ which would fold into a rectangle the size of a soldier's pack. The Major pumped on the pedals and played a few chords.

"It's wonderful what you can do with eight million dollars," he said. "Eight million dollars." The amount which the Government is spending to turn 6000 acres of rolling Arkansas woodland into a camp which will ultimately house 25,000 troops. The camp, which is now quite habitable, will be completed next month.

There is no doubt that the officers and men of St. Louis 138th Infantry, and the staffs and men of all the other regiments now in training here, are pleased with the camp. All are happy about the increased creature comforts, while the high officers are gratified by the rapidity with which the construction job has been done.

As the first battalion of the 138th rolled into camp yesterday morning on the train from St. Louis, Col. Lawrence C. Kingsland, the commanding officer, peered out of the Pullman window and looked at all the work going on, even though it was Sunday.

Col. Kingsland made a brief speech at the officers' mess, concluding by asking if anyone had any questions. No one did, and the Colonel beamed: "That's a good way to end the first day."

Just look at what that guy Hitler has done," he said, as the train moved past cranes and steam shovels and dump trucks, past carpenters and graders and road builders, past pipe fitters and electricians working in the tents.

Later in the day, after he had inspected the camp, Col. Kingsland felt that the feverish activity was already carrying an answer back to Hitler.

But you'd hardly guess from a first day's trip through the camp that the men are preparing for a possible war. The serious part of training will come soon enough, but while the men are settling down, there is a summer resort atmosphere about the place.

It was clear but cold when the two St. Louis battalions of the 138th arrived at the reservation's railroad station. They marched about a mile from the station down to their battalion areas, where they broke into companies and were assigned to their tents.

Most of the men were weary from the train ride, and those who weren't put to work unloading supplies lugged around the heated mess halls. The kitchens are neatly and compactly outfitted with shiny new stoves and iceboxes, and the cooks marveled as they walked in. It was a long wait until lunch—breakfast had been served on the train at 5 a. m.

All during the afternoon supply trucks moved over the roads and men in blue denim unloaded their contents. Desks and filing cabinets and mimeograph machines were carried into the spacious staff headquarters; cots and soft mattresses were unloaded at the tents.

At the camp exchange, the clerks began stocking the counters with beer and tobacco and started taking up the calendars with the pictures of slinky women on them.

When it came time for evening mess, most of the men were well fagged out, and there weren't very many who took the bus into town to explore the nightlife of Little Rock.

Col. Kingsland made a brief speech at the officers' mess, concluding by asking if anyone had any questions. No one did, and the Colonel beamed: "That's a good way to end the first day."

AUTHORITY ASKED FOR NAVY OUTLAY OF 509 MILLION

Additional Funds Needed to Expand Shipyards and Ordnance Manufacturing Facilities, Vonson Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Chairman Vinson (Dem.), Georgia, of the House Naval Committee, introduced legislation today to authorize an additional $509,000,000 expansion of naval shipbuilding and ordnance manufacturing facilities. He said previously prescribed limitations were expected to be reached "in the immediate future."

Secretary of the Navy Knox, in a letter to the committee requesting the authorization, said $315,000,000 of the funds were required for expansion of shipbuilding facilities at both Government and private shipyards and $194,000,000 for additional equipment and facilities for the production of armor plate and other ordnance material.

Legislation authorizing expansion of the fleet last year gave the Navy the right to spend $150,000,000 on new building facilities and a total of about $300,000,000 for additional armor and ordnance capacity. Knox said those funds were so nearly exhausted that the Navy Department already had given manufacturers "letters of intent" calling for further expansion which would cost "substantial sums."

While the committee has no special appropriation, it has full powers of subpoena and the right to call any and all witnesses.

Wheeler and Davis.

Wheeler met Davis not long after the oil man had returned from Europe, in October, 1939, and heard his story. They were brought together through the offices of John L. Lewis, who has been friendly to Davis ever since Lewis gave aid and advice in the Mexican oil deals. Lewis vouched for Davis with Vicente Lombardo Toledano, head of the Mexican labor movement.

As he disclosed in a recent interview, Wheeler has set himself up as head of the anti-war group in the Senate. He will direct the activities of Senators who intend to fight the lend-lease plan for getting war material to Britain. Likewise, Lewis is known to be strongly opposed to the aid-Britain policy of the administration, regarding himself as the potential leader in a national anti-war move, possibly of a political character.

Davis' interview in New York yesterday had originally been scheduled for today but was pushed ahead because of the "urgency of the situation," it was announced at Davis' handsome offices in Rockefeller Center. In the course of the interview Davis denied that he was a backer of Verne Marshall, Iowa educator who is head of the No Foreign War Committee.

Marshall in a statement here last week had asserted that Davis had agreed to back his (Marshall's) "commitment" of $100,000 if money failed to come in in response to his public appeals. Davis said, however, that he was in favor of all peace committees which sought "tranquility."

In confirming that he would call Davis, Wheeler indicated he would question the oil man also about his reported secret contributions to the Democratic National Committee in 1936. In a letter to Ben Smith, spectacular New York broker and longtime associate of the oil man, Davis disclosed he had "made available" to the Democrats $291,000 through Walter A. Jones, Pennsylvania politician.

"Elks' Rest" Raided.

Elks' Rest, 211 North Cardinal avenue, headquarters for Negro members of the Elks' lodge, was raided yesterday by police who reported finding two bottles of beer on the bar and six customers in the place. The bartender, William Brown, was arrested and booked for a police Court on a charge of Sunday sale of beer.

Comment in Congress on Message; Some Republicans Join in Approval

But Others in Both Major Parties Express Varying Degrees of Criticism—"Couldn't Be Better," Says Glass.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Democratic leaders and some Republicans today commended President Roosevelt's message to Congress, urging increased defense production and expanded aid to Britain, but some legislators were critical.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, termed the speech "magnificent," adding that it "expressed the overwhelming determination of the American people."

Senator Austin of Vermont, acting Republican leader, said he thought the speech would "do much to crystallize the armory and unity necessary to greater efforts to aid Britain."

On the critical side, Representative Rich (Rep.), Pennsylvania, commented that "to carry out the will of the President's speech means war and dictatorship in this country and what can be worse?"

"Big Push in Blitzkrieg."

Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), New York, called it "a big push in the blitzkrieg against the peace and freedom of the American people, with demagoguery as the major weapon."

Other comment:

Speaker Rayburn: "It stated the viewpoint of the vast majority of the American people, in masterly fashion."

Senator Tobey (Rep.), New Hampshire: "It did not contain a great deal of factual information" about the defense program.

Senator Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana: "The President covered too much territory" when he outlined plans "to try to give the whole world the kind of life we have in this country."

George's Comment.

Senator George (Dem.), Georgia: "A strong statement of the President's position."

Senator White (Rep.), Maine: "It was a summons to sober thinking, but I propose to support the prexy in his objectives so far as I can, without getting the country into war."

Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia: "A fine speech. It couldn't be better."

Representative Rogers (Rep.), Massachusetts: "It seems to me a very large order, the protection of the entire world."

the Festus School Board under false pretenses, and sentenced to two years in prison. His appeal is pending. He was accused of two State charges of embezzling, but six other State charges are pending against him.

DR. DAVID B. STUTSMAN DIES, APPARENTLY OF HEART ATTACK

Collapsed at St. Luke's Hospital, Where He Had Gone to Perform an Operation.

Dr. David B. Stutsman, physician and surgeon with offices in the University Club Building, collapsed and died today, apparently of heart attack, at St. Luke's Hospital, where he had gone to perform an operation. He was 43 years old.

Dr. Stutsman, a staff physician at the hospital, complained of feeling ill shortly after arriving there this morning at 11 o'clock. He was assisted to an examining room, but soon lost consciousness. An inhalator was used about an hour.

A graduate of the Washington University School of Medicine, Dr. Stutsman specialized in genito-urinary surgery. He lived at 421 South Sappington road, Kirkwood. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Stutsman, and three children. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

COMPARES CASES.

"The comparative seriousness of the charges in the Brickey case and other cases," Judge Collet said, "would not alone control the right to bail pending appeal. Whether it is more reprehensible for men occupying positions of trust and confidence, representing a good cause, to betray that trust and injure that cause for their personal gain, with complete disregard for the interests they pretend to represent, than it is to commit the acts the jury was found in this cause were committed, throws no light on the existence or non-existence of substantial questions of law in either."

In the Nick-Weston case, it was held that substantial questions of law supported the granting of appeal bond. The anti-racketeering statute, under which they were convicted, is comparatively new, and its constitutionality has not yet been determined by the higher courts.

In January, 1940, Brickey was freed of Federal embezzlement charges on a directed verdict. He was convicted in State court at Mexico, Mo., in December, 1939, of obtaining a warrant for $2853 from

MESSAGE SHOVING U.S. TO WAR, SAYS LONDON

Former Presidential Nominee Asks, 'What Else Can President Mean.'

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 6 (AP).—Alf M. Landon declared today that President Roosevelt's message to Congress shoved the United States further toward active participation in the war as an ally of Great Britain.

The 1936 Republican presidential nominee commented: "What else can the President mean when he says we cannot acquiesce in a peace except one acceptable to us?"

Landon said he believed the message went beyond the limits of Roosevelt's international broadcast Dec. 29.

"I agree heartily with the President," he added, "in his demand for swift and driving efforts to speed production and to build up our national defense. There is no element of doubt as to the country's support of a policy of unity in placing the nation on a sound and adequate defense basis."

WPA WORKERS ALL TAKING TWO DAYS OFF TO FIND JOBS

They Will Be Allowed to Make Up Time Lost During Two-Day Suspension.

WPA project workers throughout Missouri, who normally work about three and a half days a week, were taking today and tomorrow off at the order of State Administrator B. M. Castel to seek employment in private industry. They will be allowed to make up time lost during the two-day suspension, the first of the "Find-a-Job Days" scheduled by Castel.

William Judson Gray, St. Louis WPA director, said about 14,000 WPA workers in St. Louis and St. Louis County were taking the two days off. The order does not apply to about 700 workers who are engaged in national defense projects, such as construction of new barracks at Jefferson Barracks, or are employed as watchmen for Government property.

Although WPA employees work 130 hours a month and thus have spare time for job hunting, Gray said, the "Find-a-Job Days" will call their attention to the availability of private employment and to the desirability of obtaining jobs before drastic reductions in WPA rolls expected this spring.

Leahy Said to Carry Pledge of Aid To France If It Again Fights Nazis

By HELEN KIRKPATRICK
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch
Special Cable. Copyright 1941.
LONDON, Jan. 6.—Admiral William D. Leahy, newly arrived United States Ambassador to Vichy, carries with him, this writer learns, a message to Marshal Henri Petain, French chief of state, which makes it clear that if the Vichy Government, or any of its members, feel it necessary to go to North Africa and reopen the war on Germany, the United States will back them up with all the resources at its disposal.

On the other hand, no doubt is left by that message, it is said, that if the converse is true—if Vichy feels impelled to give Germany far-reaching collaboration, it can expect absolutely nothing from the United States.

The United States, according to this version of the President's message, is offering Marshal Petain the best support it can, consistent with the policy it has adopted of giving full aid to the forces fighting against Axis domination. It is thought that it will help Petain considerably in the efforts to live up to the terms of the French-German armistice, but at the same time to avoid giving the Germans any more collaboration than was promised under those terms.

The British Government yesterday gave its official recognition, as forecast Dec. 29, to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Council of Defense of Empire as Leahy arrived in Vichy. This recognition of De Gaulle's Council, established at Brazzaville, French Congo, last October, places the British Government in the position of being able, at a subsequent date, to recognize other de facto administrations of French territories.

which may reopen the war against the Axis.

Leahy in Vichy, Presents Credentials to Flandin.
VICHY, France, Jan. 6 (AP).—Admiral William D. Leahy, new United States Ambassador to Vichy, began work at his desk in the chancellery today after arriving last night through one of Southern France's worst snow storms in years. He traveled in a special salon car from Nimes.

He called on Foreign Minister Pierre-Edouard Flandin in his first official visit to present copies of his credentials and request an appointment with the chief of state, Marshal Henri Philippe Petain. Petain probably will receive him formally tomorrow or Wednesday.

Leahy was greeted on his arrival last night by a police guard which usually turns out only for Petain.

Leahy and his wife retired at once to a villa belonging to the wealthy American, Frank J. Gould. The villa has been set aside by the French Government as the Embassy residence.

Hopkins Leaves by Clipper on London Mission.
NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP).—Without making any comment on the detailed motives of his mission, Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's especially assigned personal envoy to Great Britain, left for London today on the Yankee Clipper.

"I will be back when I have finished," he said, as he boarded the Lisbon-bound plane. "It won't be too long."

He replied to a host of questions with a simple statement: "I do not want to add anything to what the President has said."

'TRIBUTE' FORCED BY AFL AT TNT PROJECT, CIO SAYS

Union Asserts Men Seeking Work at St. Charles Plant Have Paid Fees Totaling $1,000,000.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
201-S Kellogg Bldg.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Charging that men applying for work on the $14,000,000 TNT plant to be constructed near St. Charles, Mo., are "forced to pay tribute" to AFL unions, the CIO Construction Workers Organizing Committee, through its chairman, A. D. Lewis, today called for an investigation by the War Department.

Lewis, a brother of John L. Lewis, until recently head of the CIO, said the AFL unions were charging fees of $54.50 for common laborers up to $220 for electric welders "solely in order that they may have temporary work on a Government job."

He characterized this as "unconscionable tribute."

"Notwithstanding the War Department's policy a back-door verbal understanding has been arrived at between the AFL and the contractor to deny employment to all who did not pay this tribute," Lewis said in a letter to Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

Reports that building workers' unions have been charging high fees to applicants for work on defense projects have been coming from various parts of the country.

"On this project at Weldon Springs, Mo.," said the Lewis letter, "Col. Clyde L. Miller, army officer in charge, stated a three-point labor policy that was intended to prevent discrimination against local labor and their exploitation by craft union leaders who never exerted a finger in their behalf and who will not concern themselves with them once this project is completed."

"The policy, which was stated to be 'on orders from Washington,' provided that: All applicants shall be qualified mechanics; there shall be no discrimination on account of union membership; applicants are not required to pay fees to any organization to obtain work."

"Yet, this policy was suddenly abandoned when craft union leaders, who had no prior wage agreement with the contractor and but 27 members in the county, objected to its terms."

"Workers Imported."

The agreement entered into by Col. Miller has made it necessary, Lewis charged, that workers "be imported from far away." This, he said, in his request for an investigation, might seriously delay construction of the defense plant.

"Members of the United Construction Workers' Organizing Committee and other residents of the locality are naturally deeply resentful of this situation, which is completely contrary to Federal policy as stated by the President of the United States and to the War Department's own stated labor policy on this project," the Lewis letter declared.

"We have in our possession many affidavits and signed protests from citizens who are demanding the right to work without the necessity of lining the pockets of a few craft officials to whom they hold no allegiance and who in no sense represent them."

Lewis distinguished between "this type of arrangement" and what he called "bona fide labor organizations." Those forced to pay fees, so much in a down payment and so much a week, obtain "no permanent union protection," he said.

Charges $1,000,000 Total.

"Within St. Charles County," he declared in his letter to Patterson, "there are thousands of unemployed construction workers able and willing to erect this plant, but who are turned away simply because they will not or cannot pay fees running in the aggregate upward of $1,000,000 for the privilege of working on this Government project."

"We respectfully request a thorough and complete investigation of the entire situation," Lewis said. "We are confident that if this inequitable situation were eliminated, the promotion of national defense work would be advanced."

Recently a story appeared in the Washington Star saying that applicants for work on construction of Camp Meade in Maryland were being asked for exorbitant fees and refused work if they did not pay these union charges. Subsequently the story was denied, and the Star apologized to the building unions for giving currency to the charges.

From various parts of the country, and particularly the South, have come reports that in the vast new construction effort unions are charging excessive temporary fees which are, in effect, work permits.

At the War Department it was said the department's general policy is to leave the whole issue of labor relations up to the contractor. While nothing could be said as to the reply Patterson might make, it was stressed this was the fixed policy and that the department had nothing to do with what goes on at Weldon Springs.

Church Denies Fees in Amount Named Are Being Charged.

John J. Church, secretary of the St. Louis Building Trades Council, denied today that fees in the amount quoted by Lewis were being charged for membership in AFL unions.

Discussing the two purported fees quoted by Lewis, $54.50 for laborers and $220 for electric welders, Church asserted that the initiation fee for laborers is $15 and that for electric welders, who come under the jurisdiction of the Iron Workers' Union, is $5.

"Those fees are set by the respective international unions, and it must be remembered that AFL union electric welders draw $14 a day," Church said. "Union laborers are being paid 67½ cents an hour on the TNT job, he added. The AFL secretary asserted that some initiation fees were as high as $100, but he said he recalled no charge of $220. The usual dues for most unions are about $2 a month, he added."

Church pointed out that it would not be necessary to take in many new members to man the TNT job. "Private work is slack now and we have sufficient labor now to handle the job, I believe," Church said. He expressed the opinion the early announcement that 8000 men would be required on construction of the $11,000,000 plant was "inflated."

Initiation fees entitle the men who pay them to full union membership, which is continuous as long as the men remain in good standing with their union, Church said. "There is no special initiation for this job; the men who come into a union for this work will be recognized on any job and they pay their dues and live up to the union rules."

Church asserted that the complaints directed against the AFL were inspired by the business interests of St. Charles. "The St. Charles business men want that payroll spent in their stores, despite the fact that St. Louis County is a lot closer to the TNT job than is St. Charles," Church said.

The labor policy of the Fraser-Brace Engineering Co., contractor on the TNT job, as announced Dec. 30, is that employees would be drawn from AFL members so long as the supply was sufficient, then from the most reliable source available on the open market.

Harry Englander, manager of the construction company, said no contracts had been signed to use AFL labor exclusively, but the firm had assured the AFL that its members would be given the jobs so long as the supply lasted.

BRITISH BOMB ATTACK SHIP DOCKS AT B

Air Ministry Reports Submarines S Damaged or Sunk Raids on Bordeaux

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Force of British bombers reported today to have attacked the docks at Brest, occupied France, and another before dusk yesterday. The Air Ministry's new assertion that the Brest docks again battered by many "bombs" in the raid.

German fighter planes flying over the port when British bombers arrived, were service said, but it seems "drove them off" and their bombing. One Messerschmitt fighter was to have been shot down.

The ground defenses were to have put up an barrage. One Blenheim most turned over by a burst anti-aircraft shell burst immediately beneath it.

The Air Ministry said a harbor at Brest was bombed in another attack. In further offensive yesterday, the ministry said two German supply ships by Royal Air Force bombs southwest coast of Norway.

The Air Ministry asserted that British bombers "severely damaged or sunk" Italian submarine German-held base of Bordeaux on the French coast. Date attacks were not given, ministry's new service said had been made "on several occasions."

CHURCHILL NAMES
BOARDS TO SPEED

Sets Up New Production and Imports Committees
—Reconstruction Council
Also Formed.

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Prime Minister Winston Churchill today named three new Government executive bodies to take charge of Britain's production, imports and post-war reconstruction policy.

The assignments are:
Production—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin.
Imports—Minister of Supply Sir Andrew Duncan.

Reconstruction Policy — Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio.

More Rapid Action Sought.
The announcement from No. 10 Downing street said the changes were designed to bring the Government into a "more simple and closely knit structure, leading to a reduction in the number of subsidiary committees" and "to achieve more rapid and decisive action."

Duncan's committee, it said, undertakes to "animate and regulate the whole business of importation." The function of Bevin's committee was defined as including "allocation of available resources of raw materials, productive capacity and labor."

The work of the new import and production "executives"—the name by which the announcement designated them—and that of the three existing committees on civil defense, home policy and food policy will be concerted, it said, "and directed by a committee on which the chairman of all these bodies sit under the chairmanship of the Lord President of the Council," Sir John Anderson.

There has already existed for some time a committee of three supply Ministers to regulate and concert purchases in North America, "the statement said. "This committee, while continuing its separate work, is also through its members embodied in and related to the function of the import and production executives."

The changes constituted the first major reorganization in the Cabinet since Churchill took over leadership of Britain's war effort. They were interpreted as designed to streamline the Government and cut to a minimum delays resulting from the overlapping functions of agencies hastily set up in the first year of war.

The reference to allocation of labor was the first official intimation that the Government may use the powers granted it last May 22 to say where and how available manpower is to be used.

Churchill named to Duncan's import committee Lord Beaverbrook, Minister for Aircraft Production, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty; Capt. Oliver Lyttleton, president of the Board of Trade, and Lord Woolton, Minister of Food.

Bevin's production committee includes Lord Beaverbrook, Capt. Lyttleton, Alexander and Duncan. It will replace the production council.

Of the reconstruction policy assignment, the official statement said:

"The Minister Without Portfolio has undertaken responsibility for the study of reconstruction and post-war problems. Later on, when the end of the war can be more clearly foreseen, a ministry will be formed for this purpose."

"Meanwhile, Mr. Arthur Greenwood will be chairman of the group of ministers. The object will be to find practical solutions for the immediate problem of a transition from war to peace and also to outline and presently to amplify a policy for the years immediately following the war which will command the support of the nation as a whole and enable united action to proceed in peace as in war."

LLOYD GEORGE
SLATED FOR POST
By HELEN KIRKPATRICK
The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Special Cable. Copyright 1941.
LONDON, Jan. 6.—Changes in the British War Cabinet are expected to occur within the next few weeks, with David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of World War days, almost certain to be taken in, charged with domestic matters and the task of bringing about closer co-operation between Conservatives and Laborites.

Lloyd George may be placed in a position where he can concentrate on the home front, which has been neglected since Prime Minister Winston Churchill took office. The Prime Minister's first concern is the strategy of war, and the second, the conduct of foreign affairs. Home problems, such as railways, coal shortages, working conditions, and the attitude of labor, have not been given the attention they require. Nor has Churchill, who, despite his reputation, is not a politician, been able effectively to weld the coalition government into a real marriage of Conservatives and Laborites.

This is the task which it is believed Lloyd George may be able to do best.

Dog Bars Help for Dying Master.
CULVER CITY, Cal., Jan. 6 (AP).—For two hours, while his master lay dying on a sidewalk, a big police dog refused to permit police or bystanders to touch William B. Harkness, 61 years old. A humane officer finally won the dog away, but Harkness was dead of a heart attack when he reached a hospital.

BRITISH BOMBERS
ATTACK SHIPPING,
DOCKS AT BREST

Air Ministry Reports Italian
Submarines Severely Damaged or Sunk in Raids on Bordeaux.

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—A small force of British bombers was reported today to have attacked shipping in the docks at Brest, German-occupied France, and an airdrome just before dusk yesterday.

The Air Ministry's news service asserted that the Brest docks were again battered by many sticks of bombs in the raid.

German fighter planes were circling over the port when the British Blenheim bombers arrived, the news service said, but the Blenheims "drove them off and then did their bombing."

One German Messerschmitt fighter was reported to have been shot down.

The ground defenses were reported to have put up an "immense barrage." One Blenheim was almost turned over by a blast from an anti-aircraft shell bursting immediately beneath it.

The Air Ministry said a destroyer in the harbor at Brest was hit by bombs in another attack Saturday. In further offensive operations yesterday, the ministry reported two German supply ships were hit by Royal Air Force bombers off the southwest coast of Norway.

The Air Ministry asserted tonight that British bombers had severely damaged or sunk outright Italian submarines at the German-held base of Bordeaux, on the French coast. Dates of the attacks were not given, but the ministry's new service said these had been made "on several occasions."

DIVORCEES OF 1900 RE-WEED
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6 (AP).—Gustav C. Hauff, retired Chicago merchant, and Mrs. Henrietta Hauff Leese Hauff were on a second honeymoon today, remarried after a divorce 40 years ago.

First married at East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 23, 1895, they were divorced five years later. Hauff's second wife died several years ago, and his bride divorced her second husband in 1928.

RUSSIA REPORTED AGREEING TO NAZI MOVE ON BULGARIA

Germans in Belgrade Say Russia Will Be Given Free Hand in Finland and Moldavia.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Jan. 6 (AP).—German official quarters here gave currency today to reports that Soviet Russia had agreed that the Germans should enter and take over Bulgarian territory. These reports were not confirmed in Russian, Bulgarian, Rumanian or Turkish sources.

In exchange for the Soviet acquiescence, the German sources said, the Russians received from Berlin an understanding that Germany would not oppose any Russian policy with respect to Finland or to Moldavia, the section of Rumania adjoining Bessarabia, already annexed by Russia.

These sources said the Germans were not likely to move into Bulgaria, however, until either a heavy freeze or a thaw makes it easy to cross the Danube from Rumania.

(A high official of the Soviet Foreign Consulate arrived in Sofia today and this was interpreted there as a sign that the German reports might only be wishful thinking. The Russian official is Alexander Mikhailovich, known as Moscow's top Balkan expert. Diplomatic reports also indicated that the Turks have concentrated several hundred thousand crack troops in Thrace, close to the Bulgarian frontier.)

German Version of Situation. Here is the view of German sources on what is happening and what will happen in the Balkans if their plans go well:

Bulgarian Premier Bogdan Philoff, they asserted, already has seen German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and told him that if Russia agreed to German entry into Bulgaria there was nothing the little kingdom could do. There would be no resistance, Philoff was represented as saying.

When a Danube crossing is feasible, said these sources, the Germans will go through Bulgaria to the Greek frontier.

The Germans would enter Greece, the informants went on, only if the British show continued signs of making Greece their starting point for a drive northward through the Balkans.

Nazis Hope to Seize Greece. The Germans hoped, it was said, that the Greeks would accept peace once they saw German motorized legions drawn up on their Bulgarian frontier.

These quarters said the German plans call for practical dissolution of the Rumanian state. Bulgaria would get Northern Dobruja, Hungary the rest of Transylvania and what is left of Rumania would be under complete German military and civil domination.

(Axis-dictated accords already have given Hungary the northwestern half of Transylvania and Bulgaria Southern Dobruja.)

Bulgaria, it was added, also would get its long-desired outlet to the Aegean Sea.

MOSCOW CALLS IN ENVOYS TO BALKANS

BUDAPEST, Jan. 6 (AP).—Soviet Russia's Ministers to Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Hungary were returning to Moscow today, reportedly for consultations on Germany's increasing military strength in the Balkans.

The summoning of the envoys was taken here as the first definite evidence the Russians have given of their interest in the large scale German troop movements of the last week.

Forty troop trains a day have moved from Hungary into Rumania, which was cut off entirely from communication with the outside world early today.

In some Soviet circles in the Balkans it was reported that Moscow already has warned Berlin against a "step which might seriously endanger good relations" between Russia and Germany.

German troops have been reported massed on the Bessarabian border, next to Rumania.

Behind the wall of secrecy in Rumania, Adolf Hitler's Balkan force (estimated as high as 600,000 men) was said to be consolidating its position along the frontier with Russia, along the Danube facing Bulgaria and in cities only a few miles from Yugoslavia.

Diplomatic dispatches from Bucharest said all Rumanian towns on the Danube in the 250-mile stretch between Turnu-Severin and Giurgiu had been emptied to permit billeting of German troops opposite Bulgaria.

A German establishment called the "Expeditionary Force Headquarters" was reported to have been set up in Bucharest, with 350 new high-ranking officers there. All airports, civil and military, have been taken over by the Nazis in Rumania and dispatches told of planes and tanks being concentrated at Roman, one of the largest towns in Moldavia and close to the Russian frontier.

Yugoslavia Uneasy. The Bulgarian Communist party distributed leaflets saying "Soviet Russia will not allow a single German soldier to set foot on Bulgaria," which often has been mentioned as a possible path for a

Captured Italian General

GEN. ANNIBALE BERGONZOLI, commander of the Italian garrison of Bardia, who was taken by the British. Bergonzoli is known by the Army of the Nile as "Electric Whiskers."

British Capture Bardia, Drive on Toward Tobruk

dromes, naval barracks and defense fortifications, the communiqué announced. R. A. F. planes, guided by their target by the blazing fire, dropped additional bombs into the center of the conflagration, "considerably increasing its area," it added.

Land "Blockade." (Reports) London said that British mechanized forces were operating 20 miles south of Tobruk and that a "close blockade" had been tightened around the port to guard against any attempt at a Fascist counterattack against British wedges in Eastern Libya.)

The British reported that Bardia, besieged 20 days and under final attack since dawn Friday, fell yesterday at 1:30 p. m. (5:30 p. m., St. Louis time).

Capture of more than 30,000 Italians along with their commander, Gen. Annibale Bergonzoli and five other senior Generals was reported in a High Command communiqué which said:

"All stores and equipment are now in our hands. . . . Among other booty captured or destroyed are 45 light and five medium tanks."

Military sources here said capture of the garrison, left behind to hold out while Tobruk's defenses were reinforced, meant that Graziani has lost about 85,000 of his North African army of 250,000, less than a month. Nearly 40,000 were reported captured at Egyptian outposts as the Italians were forced back into Libya, and their casualties were estimated at 15,000.

Quoted, British news agency, issued today as saying: "The British said that there were a 'few' casualties aboard the British gunboat Aphis, which escaped with a 'near miss' from Italian coastal batteries."

General's Escape Thwarted. The British said the attempt was frustrated that was believed to be an eleventh-hour attempt to save Gen. Bergonzoli, known to the British as "Electric Whiskers," and other high officers from capture.

Five Italian planes were said to have landed in Bardia Friday night, supposedly to carry the officers away, but were riddled by R. A. F. machine-gun fire they were unable to take off again.

Dispatches from the front after the last resistance at Bardia collapsed said the first break in the strong arc of Italian defenses was made by tanks, after a bombardment from air, sea and land.

The British said that the attacking troops at Bardia so that they could be subjected to machine-gunning were said in London to have been a feature of the Italian defense. However, the Australians kept their casualties low through their ability to hide among desert rocks and ravines to escape this German drive on the Dardanelles or Greece.

Bulgaria's neighbor, Yugoslavia, was pictured as uncomfortable over this possibility, but German headquarters in Belgrade asserted Yugoslavia would be treated as "another Sweden if she behaved."

Reports of military activity in the Balkans continued to flow through diplomatic channels despite the suspension of international telephone communications in Rumania and the halting of even fast international trains at that country's border.

Reports reaching Ruse, Bulgaria, across the Danube from Giurgiu, Rumania, said the German troops had been forced to contend with disorders which had their inception in widespread sabotage by railroad workers in the so-called "Communist wing" of the Rumanian Iron Guard.

Strong Nazi motorized columns were said to have reached Giurgiu with considerable quantities of bridge-building equipment and a large corps of engineers. These reports said the Rumanian military was ordered to place an especially heavy guard on all bridges and railroad authorities were told by the Germans to keep the line from Bucharest to Constanta, Rumania's Black Sea port, in perfect condition for possible emergency use.

The Rumanians were reported to have mined the Danube at Galatz, scene of several frontier clashes between Rumanians and Russians, and under German direction were said to have begun the work of converting the old Danube outlet from Cerna-Voda to Constanta into a navigable canal.

Diplomatic circles said they regarded the latter development as indirect confirmation of persistent reports that the Russians had seized the Sulina Canal, the only navigable river outlet, which is far south of the Russian frontier in Rumania.

Turks Say Germany Fears British Thrust Through Balkans. ISTANBUL, Jan. 6 (AP).—Belief that Germany fears a British attack through the Balkans is expressed in the Turkish press, which says it considers Italy as good as out of the war.

The newspaper Vakit, commenting on the visit to Vienna of Bulgarian Premier Bogdan Philoff, said it was because of the "Italian defeat" that Germany fears "attack from the Balkans, and therefore the Balkans need not fear attack from Germany."

"It is probable that the Bulgarians will talk with the Germans about how to prevent a British attack, rather than how to carry out a German attack in the Balkans," Vakit said.

Yeni Sabah asserted that "defeat is Hitler's only destiny—only the form and date of the defeat are unknown."

Moscow Silent on Recall of Four Balkan Ministers. MOSCOW, Jan. 6 (AP).—There has been no comment on or publication here of reports that Soviet Russia's ministers to four Southeastern European countries have been called to Moscow for consultation.

The term of compulsory military training for the Russian air force was increased yesterday from three to four years.

Italy's position in all Eastern Libya is in peril as a result of the fall of Bardia, British military sources said today.

Not only have British forces taken the main stronghold of Libya's eastern defenses and destroyed another big Italian army, they said, but there are indications of swiftly growing demoralization among Italy's North African forces.

They declared British units already dominate inland regions almost 100 miles from the Western Egyptian frontier.

The British have captured so many prisoners that transporting, feeding and sheltering them impose a difficult problem.

The name and address of each prisoner is being telegraphed to the International Red Cross at Geneva so that his family may be informed.

No Heart for Battle. The enormous number of prisoners and the few casualties, the British said, reflected the Italians' lack of enthusiasm for the war.

This does not mean the campaign was any picnic for the British. They have to go forward in a desert which in itself presents innumerable difficulties to offensive action in the face of heavy artillery fire. This was especially true at Bardia, where strong fortifications were two years in the building.

The British said a large part of the Fascist North African army is made up of Southern Italian peasants and workers who desire only to get back to their little farms, their homes and their work.

"I don't like the war," one told me. "I didn't want to come, but what could I do?"

I watched yelling Australian shock troops who came 7000 miles for this great desert battle against the Fascist blackshirts tri-umphantly enter Bardia at sunset Saturday.

From a cliff outside the port town I could see the minaret of Bardia's mosque and attacking units working toward it like a procession of toy soldiers.

Thousands of Italians entrenched in gulleys surrounding the town fired on them, and the explosions of "Fascist" artillery at times screened the creeping figures from view.

I could see the flashes from the Italian batteries, but the British tanks and Australians kept moving.

Italian Gunners Run. When they hear the batteries I saw the Italians leave—some in flight, some to surrender.

Those manning the Italian batteries near Bardia's rock walls scaled the walls and ran down the streets of the town.

They surrendered later—"under safer circumstances"—as a British officer put it.

Enter the town only a half hour after this twilight assault—also in safety.

A brilliant sunset bathed the ancient African town and thousands of prisoners in long lines marched to the rear as fast as they were rounded up by the Anzacs.

Here were the same resigned faces and gray-green uniforms of columns of men that I saw in Egypt three weeks ago. They have become a familiar sight in the desert since the British counteroffensive began less than a month ago.

A larger garrison defended this port than was thought. The original estimate was 20,000, but that has been revised upwards beyond 30,000 now, most of them prisoners.

Strong Defense Work. They defended a strongly fortified perimeter that formed an arc 10 miles from end to end along the seacoast and running inland about four miles at the deepest point.

This system of concrete and steel cracked like an egg shell under the 48-hour bombardment by artillery, the Royal Air Force and British warships operating off shore.

The inner defenses were taken in many cases by bitter hand-to-hand fighting, but casualties were not believed to be heavy on either side.

The first breach in the outer defenses was made by Australian engineers who cut through the barbed wire before dawn Friday. This was on the southwest arc of the ring.

Local resistance was overpowered with grenades and bayonet combat. Anti-tank traps were filled in by explosions and mines were exploded by thrown stones.

ITALIANS TRYING TO REFORM LINES SOUTH OF VALONA

Greeks Report Intensified Resistance by Fascists, but Claim New Gains in Coast Sector.

ATHENS, Jan. 6 (AP).—"Considerable" Greek gains despite Italian counterattacks at several points were reported today in dispatches from the coastal sector.

Italian resistance admittedly was strong, however, and the fighting was more savage than in recent days, partly because of improving weather.

The Italians were said to be making a determined stand to gain time for completing a new defense line to guard Valona, vital port for evacuation or reinforcement in Southwestern Albania.

A Greek Government spokesman's statement that the Italian strategy is to "take advantage of weather conditions and fresh reinforcements from Italy to improve the situation or delay the Greek advance" was echoed by Italian prisoners, most of them fresh troops recently arrived from Italy.

The Italians were reported to have lost heavily in counterattacks from the new positions to which they were forced yesterday after the Greeks broke their previous fortified line north of Chimarra.

Prisoners Marched Back. Disarmed Italians were formed into long lines, guarded by an average of one sentry to about 500 prisoners, for the trip back to concentration camps, a correspondent who witnessed the surrender reported.

The correspondent reported that many of the Italians had to be rooted out from gullies and caves, where they took shelter in the last minutes of the fighting. Five hundred squeezed into one redoubt, he said, and 2000 filed out of a cave at the command of an Australian officer and five infantrymen armed with rifles and one Bren gun.

ROME COMMAND ADMITS REVERSES. ROME, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Italian high command reported today that "more strongholds on the Bardia front have fallen into British hands in Libya," but did not mention the fate of Bardia itself.

The high command's communiqué said the strongholds fell "after strenuous resistance by our troops who inflicted considerable losses on the enemy."

The Rome radio insisted that losses in the Libyan desert battle in North Africa were only a passing phase of the war. It asserted that happenings at Bardia "have not altered the military situation in the least degree."

"The Italian army is intact," he radio said. "Wavell's army is far from its bases and faces the same situation as the British said the Italians did at Sidi Barrani."

The Italian people were prepared for the fall of Bardia by Giovanni Ansaldo, radio-broadcasting editor of Foreign Minister Count Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo of Leghorn.

Four hours are enough to decide the fate of Bardia, Ansaldo said in a broadcast yesterday.

"While we are speaking to you are (General) Bergonzoli and his men still holding out against the English?" Ansaldo asked. "It may be that they have given away before preponderant masses of English mechanized forces, the fleet and artillery."

"The habit of minimizing every enemy success is one which we do not like. If Bardia has fallen, this will be a new British success, local if you like, but still a considerable one and a sad piece of news for us."

The communiqué reported that Fascist planes bombed two British cruisers and an auxiliary vessel during a shelling of the coast of Somalia in Italian East Africa.

An air base on Malta, British Mediterranean island, was bombed by Italian planes yesterday, the Italian high command asserted.

IRISH ENVOY TAKES UP NAZI BOMBINGS WITH BERLIN OFFICE

Charge d'Affaires Has Been Instructed to Protest Against Flights Over His Country.

BERLIN, Jan. 6 (AP).—William Warnock, Ireland's Charge d'Affaires, visited the Foreign Office today to present his Government's views respecting alleged flights by German planes over Irish territory.

The Irish Government formally has blamed the Nazis for the bombing of three areas in neutral Ireland in the last week and announced Friday that "an energetic protest to the German Government against the violation of Irish territory by German aircraft and the loss of life and destruction of properties" would be made.

U.S.-OWNED PAPER IN SHANGHAI BOMBED AGAIN BY TERRORISTS

Reason Is Thought to Be Publication's Pro-Chungking Tendencies.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 6 (AP).—Terrorists attacked the American-owned Chinese-language newspaper Shun Pao with hand grenades for the second successive night tonight.

They flung half a dozen grenades into the building's entrance, injuring five passersby. In a similar attack last night there was no damage, the reason is believed to be the newspaper's supposed pro-French tendencies.

Five kidnapers, disguised in the uniform of the International Settlement police, kidnaped Wong Tsoo-ling, rich Chinese merchant, in his American-built limousine.

There has been no comment on or publication here of reports that Soviet Russia's ministers to four Southeastern European countries have been called to Moscow for consultation.

Italian Position in East Libya Endangered, Fascist Morale Deteriorating, British Say

Control of Areas 100 Miles West of Egyptian Frontier Claimed by English

Description of Assault on Bardia.

By EDWARD KENNEDY

BARDIA, Libya, Jan. 6 (AP).—Italy's position in all Eastern Libya is in peril as a result of the fall of Bardia, British military sources said today.

Not only have British forces taken the main stronghold of Libya's eastern defenses and destroyed another big Italian army, they said, but there are indications of swiftly growing demoralization among Italy's North African forces.

The first breach in the outer defenses was made by Australian engineers who cut through the barbed wire before dawn Friday. This was on the southwest arc of the ring.

Local resistance was overpowered with grenades and bayonet combat. Anti-tank traps were filled in by explosions and mines were exploded by thrown stones.

The full cry of artillery and R. A. F. bomb explosions had preceded this foray.

At dawn British tanks whirled into the breach. They fanned out along the southern rim of the Wadi Gifran fortifications located in a dried-up river bed and raced to the seacoast.

This drove a wedge between the north and south parts of the sector. Australian infantrymen raced into the openings loaded with grenades and machine guns. They quickly cleaned out nests of "terrified Italians," as they said later, and detached some of their forces to lead prisoners to the rear.

By nightfall the troops had occupied most of the southern half of the region, and dove into the maze of gulleys in the area for overnight protection.

Tank operations consisted of constant feinting and wheeling in the rear of Italian positions. British officers said they had expected stiffer resistance from Italian tanks, but that only a few entered the action.

Of those that did on this first

WITH Bardia captured by the British, the next possible move for the English and Anzac divisions is a march on the important Italian stronghold on Tobruk, 70 miles to the west of the Libyan border. The capture of Bardia means opening a port to the British navy whereby supplies and men can be transported by water (1) from Egypt for a campaign westward. The road to Tobruk (2) stretches to the west.

day, six were shattered by British guns.

The Italians appeared to rely mostly upon artillery for defense. All Saturday morning the Australian cleanup of the southern half of the Italian area continued and by nightfall everything was set for the final push on the town itself.

As the British had done before in Egypt, they immediately used captured Italian munitions and guns to complement their own weapons. Australians already were carrying dispatches to the rear on Italian motorcycles, moving supplies in Italian trucks, camping in Italian dugouts, eating Italian food and even wearing Italian clothes.

These shouting troops from "down under" also had time to load themselves up with Italian souvenirs—revolvers, binoculars, sabers and military decorations picked up from the battlefield.

There was the enthusiasm and pent-up energy of months of waiting in desert camps for real action, and they made the most of it. You could hear them singing, even after the Italian artillery opened up against them.

Bayonet charges played an important part in the capture but the Australians said not many Italians fought it out. The appearance of these gleaming blades usually resulted in surrender, they said. Privates took as many as 30 prisoners individually by merely whirling their bayonets, they related.

These troops had an eerie appearance to observers with their knitted cowls protecting them against sand storms, and as in the last great war, they didn't consider it enough to obtain objectives set for them, but usually charged on to gain additional ground.

Italian resistance, the British said, mostly was lackadaisical, but there were some instances of unusual valor.

One Fascist officer kept shooting his revolver, they said, until it was shot from his hand. Others resisted to the end.

I came across one group of exhausted Australians sprawled on the sand and rocks of the Wadi fortifications which they had taken. They had been told to get a rest there.

They grinned and asked: "What do you think of the way we fight?"

Others chimed in with: "Don't forget those British tanks. When you begin to doubt your own confidence, those tanks give you a lift."

Australians were not the only soldiers given to song. I watched singing Italian prisoners marching miles to truck depots where they were to be taken to concentration camps. Neapolitan airs in the Libyan desert!

Several fires were blazing when I entered Bardia. Volleys of gunfire also echoed in the gulleys to the north where other prisoners and snipers were being rounded up. There was no sniping in the town itself.

Half of the little white buildings in the town were wrecked. The Fascist headquarters was in ruins, but the Government house was only slightly damaged.

Only a small British company held the town. Most of the tanks and heavy weapons were in the city to make ready for new operations to shatter Mussolini's African empire.

Wilbur Miley, 16 years old, was shot in the right side of the chest today when a pistol he was examining in the home of his brother, Robert Miley, with whom he lived at 4303 Delmar boulevard, was discharged accidentally.

He told police he was home alone at the time and had taken the pistol from a dresser drawer to examine it. He was taken to City Hospital.

ARMY TO SEEK BIDS ON 11,528 TRUCKS

Drops Attempt to Fill Order by Negotiation With Two Companies.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The War Department announced today it would ask for formal sealed bids on 11,528 one-half ton trucks "in lieu of trying to meet requirements by further negotiations with the Fargo Motor Corporation and the Ford Motor Co."

After the Fargo Motor Corporation had received an order for 14,000 trucks of the same general type in August, the announcement said, the War Department, in the light of experience in maneuvers, decided to change certain specifications of the truck.

To increase manufacturing sources of this item, it negotiated both with the Fargo Corporation and the Ford company for the modified type of truck, the department said.

"In view of the prolonged character of the negotiations, it was deemed the fair course to all concerned to ask for formal sealed bids by advertisement, and an order to that effect was issued with the approval of the Advisory Commission," the announcement added.

The procurement division said labor provisions had no part in the decision to ask for sealed bids. The reason, it was explained, was that changed specifications had caused delay and it was desirable to break the procurement field from two companies to several more.

AID-BRITAIN PLAN MEANS WAR, SAYS PHIL LA FOLLETTE

Asserts Roosevelt's 'Fire-side Chat' Points to Conflict 'Gigantic in Size and Terrible in Cost.'

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (AP).—Former Gov. Philip F. La Follette of Wisconsin believes that if President Roosevelt is permitted to carry out his foreign program the United States "will soon be at war—total war so gigantic in size and so terrible in cost that our efforts in the last war will look insignificant."

In a radio speech under auspices of the America First Committee, La Follette last night asserted that the President's last fireside address carried a "time-bomb . . . a clear, emphatic and unequivocal statement that we shall make and deliver weapons of war in sufficient quantity to insure an overwhelming British victory."

"That means war," La Follette continued, "because we cannot do what President Roosevelt proposes without conveying those freighters with our navy. War might come before, but the moment an American man-of-war is sighted in the war zone of the Atlantic it will be fired upon—and, of course, will return the fire. That is war in anybody's language."

May Have to Fight Alone. La Follette, who was Wisconsin Governor for three terms and is a brother of Senator Robert M. La Follette (Sen.), Wisconsin, has been an occasional critic of the Roosevelt administration since he organized the National Progressives of America party in 1936. He supported many of the President's policies during the early years of the administration.

Asserting that the President in his speech "attempted to frighten us," La Follette advised his listeners to "watch out lest our great country get into a 'Thirty-year War' and once in, then find ourselves alone with the impossible task of fighting the whole of Europe and Asia."

"When the history of these days is written, I am sure we will find exactly as desperate appeals—perhaps even ultimatums—pouring in on the White House from Britain, as those that came last June just before the fall of France, and which led the President to make his famous 'shoot-the-back' speech at Charlottesville."

"Laughed Off" Warning. La Follette said that upon his return from a trip to Europe in the spring of 1939, he warned Mr. Roosevelt that in event of war "there was great danger that France would collapse."

"It is no breach of confidence to say that he laughed it off," La Follette added.

"I suppose he was getting his inside information from Ambassador Bullitt, who has now transferred his activities from France to the United States."

concluded in the majority opinion, said in a separate opinion that the courts should not override a decision by the political branch of the Government.

The awards in favor of 153 American claimants were challenged on the ground that the German member of the commission had withdrawn and that left it powerless to act.

Those contesting the commission's decision on Oct. 30, 1939, were the Z. and F. Assets Realization Corporation of New York and the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co. They contended they had prior claims.

Justice Frankfurter delivered the oil proration opinion, applying specifically to a challenge of the orders by the Rowan & Nichols Oil Co.

Chief Justice Hughes and Justice McReynolds and Roberts dissented.

The majority opinion directed the United States District Court to dismiss the complaint.

"A state's interest in the conservation and exploitation of a primary natural resource," Justice Frankfurter said, "is not to be achieved through assumption by the Federal courts of powers plainly outside their province and no less plainly beyond their special competence."

He also said that "the Constitution does not provide that the Federal Courts shall strike a balance between ascertainable facts and dubious influences underlying such a complicated and illusive situation as is presented by the Texas oil fields in order to substitute the court's wisdom for that of the legislative body."

"The real answer to any claims of inequity or to any need of adjustment to shifting circumstances is the continuing supervisory power of the expert commission," he said.

A similar decision also was delivered in a companion case involving the Humble Oil and Refining Co.

Bars Some Tax Deductions. The Supreme Court also upheld a limitation sought by the Government on Federal income tax deductions.

The Justice Department contended that losses sustained through foreclosure of real estate and by accepting part payment for bonds of a corporation or political subdivision in financial difficulties could not be deducted in full under the 1934 Revenue Act.

The question was described as "of considerable importance in the administration of the revenue laws." An undetermined amount of taxes was at stake.

Justices Stone and Roberts delivered the opinions, applying to contests brought by Mrs. Pearl Hammel of Oakland County, Mich.; the Electro-Chemical Engraving Co., Inc., of New York; Donald S. McClain of Atlanta, and S. C. Thomson of New York.

Mrs. Hammel and the engraving company sought to deduct in full for losses on foreclosures of real estate. But the Government contended the deduction was limited because the transaction was a "sale or exchange."

Further Decisions. Other court action: Agreed to review a decision that the Federal Circuit Practices Act does not apply to primary elections. The Government asked, in a Louisiana case, that the Supreme Court reverse long-standing precedents and rule that not only general elections, but primary elections as well, are within the scope of the Federal statute.

(In 1921, in the case against Senator Truman Newberry of Michigan, the court ruled for Newberry and held that the act did not apply to primaries. The present Chief Justice Hughes argued the case for Newberry.)

Refused to review a decision dismissing a $750,000 damage suit brought against Secretary Ickes by John D. Glass, Texas attorney, formerly employed by the Interior Department.

Turned down Minnesota's request for review of a decision permitting five subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation to compute their 1933 State income tax on a consolidated basis rather than as individual companies.

THE SCREEN is toughening up again on liquor sequences, as it does every so often when the crusaders grow more alert. Morals Custodian Joe Breen issues the stern dictum that there must be a definite plot reason for every drop of the hard stuff going down a movie character's throat. Columbia took him at his word in picturing the champagne binges between Melvyn Douglas and Rosalind Russell in "This Thing Called Love."

Bob Hope reports a distressing incident in connection with his Christmas gift to Bing Crosby. "I gave him a shirt and it was in a garage, 15 tractor-trucks destroyed in fire at ALTON

The garage and 15 tractor-trucks of the Alton Box Board Co., east of Alton, near U. S. Highway 67, were destroyed by fire this morning. Fire Chief Thomas Krepel of Alton estimated the loss at $35,000, most of which was insured.

Two trailers and four employees' automobiles parked near the one-story, wood and sheet metal structure, were damaged slightly by flames. Employees got six of the 21 tractor-trucks out of the garage safely. Cause of the fire, discovered at 5:30 o'clock by a watchman, was not determined.

The company manufactures material used in construction of boxes.

But all the copy figures he's collected at testimonial dinners are small comfort to Lesser. He stands to lose $100,000 on "Our Town." The public didn't agree with the critics. INVESTIGATION IN FATAL PLANE CRASH IN COUNTY

Eyewitnesses Say Newly-
Purchased Craft Dived
From Low Altitude After Circling Field.

An investigation was begun by aeronautics authorities today after the crash of an airplane on the grounds of the St. Louis Training School in the northern part of St. Louis County yesterday, in which Alvin O. Kempf of Detroit, an automobile dealer, was killed.

Kempf, who had purchased the plane, a new Cessna 400, at the factory at Wichita, Kan., was flying it home. Eyewitnesses said the plane nose-dived from a low altitude shortly after leaving the training school. The school is at Bellefontaine and Hall roads, about five miles north of Lambert-St. Louis field.

Guy W. Faulkner, senior inspector here for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, said Kempf apparently was attempting to make a forced landing, but that the instrument panel and other parts of the ship were too badly damaged to determine cause of the crash immediately. Deputy sheriffs reported that there were two punctures in the gasoline tank, but that there was no evidence of gasoline spilled on the ground.

Max Lending, an employee of the training school, said he saw a silver airplane flying south, heard a crash several moments later and saw the plane in the field. He said he took the pilot from the cockpit to the school hospital, where he died soon afterward.

A bill of sale and receipt for the airplane, a private pilot's license and other papers identifying Kempf were turned over to Faulkner. A wrist watch, inscribed to Kempf from Edsel Ford, was stopped at 12:04 p. m. although witnesses said the crash occurred some minutes earlier.

Officers of the Ford Motor Co. at Detroit said Kempf, who was about 40 years old, was not connected with the company, but was one of the largest Ford dealers there.

The body was taken to the undergarment establishment of Coroner Louis Bopp in Kirkwood for an inquest.

Law on State Printing Attacked By Expert in Report to Governor

Technical Consultant Asserts Statute Is
Loose, Archaic and Wasteful—Accountants
Also Urge Modernization.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 6.—The law governing printing and binding for the legislative and executive branches of the State government was condemned as "loose, archaic, inadequate, contradictory" and "both wasteful and uneconomical" in a survey report filed with Gov. Lloyd C. Stark today by Col. Edward T. Miller of Chicago, technical printing consultant.

Miller's report was submitted in conjunction with one filed today by the accounting firm of Ernst & Ernst of St. Louis, in a public printing inquiry ordered by the Governor several weeks ago. The firm and Miller were employed by Stark to make the investigation.

The reports recommended revision of the law to clarify it, provide modern business methods and "proper and modern accounting procedures for the recording of printing and paper transactions so the State will have adequate control of the buying and paying for all printed matter and paper."

The inquiry, described in the Ernst & Ernst report as a "survey and limited investigation" of transactions under the printing and binding contracts for the two years ended last June 30, was ordered by Gov. Stark at the request of the Missouri Chamber of Commerce and the Associated Industries of Missouri. The action followed litigation, still pending, over award of the 1940-42 printing contract.

Excess Charges Reported.

Both reports stated the limited time available had prevented a complete survey or audit of the printing and binding transactions, which totaled $756,027 for the two years ended last June 30, but Col. Miller said he had found "technical irregularities indicating excesses in charges paid by the State amounting to several thousand dollars."

Miller cited a number of examples which he said indicated excess charges totaling $17,199, involving differences in interpretation and variances in application of type measurements. "One can only conjecture what the indicated excesses paid by the State might amount to had time permitted the extension of the survey," Miller said.

Instructions for the inquiry had called for its completion before expiration of Stark's term, which will be Jan. 13 unless he is required to hold over due to a proposed Democratic contest of the seating of Republican Governor-elect Forrest C. Donnell.

Neither report charges an actual irregularity on the part of any individual or company. The conditions complained of, dealt with chiefly in Miller's report as technical consultant, largely involve differences of opinion over interpretations of the law, certain billing practices of many years' standing, lack of regulations and specifications, and weaknesses of the printing law. Miller said there was no design to impugn the honesty of any person.

Contract Litigation.

The Midland Printing Co. of Jefferson City has held the printing contract about seven years. The Midland company and the Von Hoffmann Press of St. Louis, were bidders for the 1940-42 contract. The Public Printing Commission, made up of Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown, State Auditor Forrest Smith and State Treasurer R. W. Wynn, rejected both bids last July on a technical matter of a type specification.

Suit was filed in the Missouri Supreme Court to compel the commission to award the contract to Von Hoffmann Press, which contended its bid was low by approximately $100,000. The Midland company has been doing the printing work under a temporary contract until the suit is decided.

Both reports disclosed that while the law sets up a specific class for legislative printing "in bill form," and calls for a separate contract for this class, designated Class One, no invoices were rendered by the contractor or paid by the State under this class during the two-year period under inquiry. The contract price for this class was 70 cents a thousand ems of type composition and 6 1/2 cents a quire of 24 impressions for presswork.

Instead, Miller said, all legislative printing in bill form was paid for in Class Two, under a separate contract, and which carried a higher price of 85 cents a thousand ems for composition and 80 cents a token, or 250 impressions of a 16-page form, for press work.

Class One, under the law, includes bills, reports, resolutions and other documents printed in bill form and not printed as pamphlets. Class Two includes legislative journals, printing in pamphlet form, public documents, department reports and laws. Under an interpretation followed by the Printing Commission and Midland Printing Co., and two for-

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (AP).—A train beat the stork to Chicago today, and Mrs. Irene Bartell, 19 years old, of Waukegan, Cal., and a six-pound boy are doing nicely at St. Luke's Hospital.

She was aboard the Santa Fe Scout on her way to Albion, Mich., when the train nurse discovered the stork might beat the train. An unscheduled stop was made at Romeo, Ill. The conductor wired for help. A doctor and an ambulance met the train at the station here and rushed Mrs. Bartell to the hospital, just in time.

3 KILLED, 5 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS IN ST. LOUIS AREA

Woman Dies When Roadster Overtakes—Another Fatally Injured in Taxi-cab Collision.

Two women and a man were killed in automobile accidents in the St. Louis area yesterday.

Mrs. Emily Hurdle, 60 years old, died of a broken neck when the roadster in which she was riding overturned at a curve at Bowles avenue and Summit drive, a mile west of Fenton, St. Louis County, last night. The machine, driven by John McCloskey, residing on Hawkins road, near Valley Park, rolled over her. Mrs. Hurdle resided on Hawkins road.

Mrs. Rose Schaefer, 40, a widow, was killed when the taxicab in which she was riding collided with an automobile at Thirteenth street and Baugh avenue, East St. Louis, at 2:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Her skull was fractured.

Charles Crow, the taxi driver, told police that the automobile, driven by Louis Chaloupecky, a coal miner, of Belleville, failed to make the boulevard stop at Thirteenth street. Chaloupecky said he had started up after making the stop when the taxicab crashed into his machine.

Mrs. Schaefer resided at 420 Brady avenue, East St. Louis. Her husband, Edward, died last month.

Jerome G. Egner, 22-year-old shoe worker, of Belleville, was killed at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning when his automobile crashed into the rear of a truck, which had turned out of the Swansea Community Park onto Illinois Highway 159, north of Belleville.

Egner, who resided at 611 West C street, was pronounced dead of a crushed chest. The truck was driven by James H. Miles, who was accompanied by Mrs. Elva Dix, both of Belleville. They were cut and bruised.

Three Injured in Fire Truck-Bus Collision.

Three persons were injured when a Public Service Co. bus, east-bound in Page boulevard, collided with a Fire Department inhalator truck at Walton avenue today.

Melvin J. Brugere, 6036 Carlebad avenue, fireman with Engine Co. 43, was taken to St. John's Hospital with fractured ribs and a deep scalp laceration. Charles Bauer, 3888 Neosho street, member of Hook and Ladder Co. 15, was treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises.

Five Hurt in Auto Hit by Street Car.

Five persons were hurt, one seriously, when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a Case avenue street car at Kingshighway and St. Louis avenue early today.

The driver of the automobile, Chester Kappelman, a laborer, 2281 Yale avenue, Maplewood, suffered contusions of the head; his wife, Edna, was bruised on the leg; Edward Steinbeck and Irwin Sheer, laborers, of 4006 Flin avenue, were cut and bruised, and Mrs. Margaret Loncaric, 5375 Union boulevard, suffered a fractured neck.

John McNulty, operator of the street car, said the traffic signal was in his favor. Kappelman told

There were about 25 passengers on the bus, which was driven by Otto A. Angermann, 1038 Sells avenue. The garage employe later recovered when taken outside.

VOLUNTEERS BEAT NEW GERMAN FIRE RAID ON LONDON

'Basketfuls' of Incendiaries
Quickly Put Out—Nazis
Make 3 Daylight Thrusts at Capital.

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP)—German raiders, following up a new overnight fire bomb attack on London, raided the capital again today in daylight and bombs were reported to have fallen in three districts.

By mid-afternoon the sirens had wailed three times. The third alarm was preceded by the sound of gunfire in some areas.

Until yesterday, when one alert sounded, there had not been a daylight alarm in London for many weeks.

The first alarm today came at the rush hour, when a small reconnaissance flight reached the outskirts. It was brief.

During the second alarm a man and a girl were killed when two bombs fell on a business building. Other bombs demolished two houses and damaged others.

Machine gun fire—the sign of aerial battle—was heard in the sky. Bombs also were dropped on a town in Kent and on places in other Eastern counties, the Government said, causing "some damage to houses and shops" and killing and injuring "a small number of people."

Fires Held Down.

Although "many buildings were damaged and some persons killed" in the fire bomb attack last night, the Government said the raid was not on a heavy scale and ended before midnight.

It was the first concentrated incendiary attack on the capital since the devastating fire raid on the City of London—financial and commercial center—a week earlier but this time Londoners were ready for the test.

An army of volunteers—men, women and boys—smothered the incendiary bombs as fast as they were dropped in one sector and defiantly shouted: "We want some more." The raiders obliged promptly and the watchers dealt with those bombs just as quickly.

In this area, observers said, there seemed to be as many watchers as bombs, even though the raiders were said to be dropping them "in basketfuls."

"Fires were started at several points," a British communiqué said, "but were so promptly dealt with that none of them assumed serious proportions." Five bodies were reported recovered from wrecked houses in one district and rescue parties strove to extricate 13 other persons entombed in the wreckage.

Some raiders were reported over Liverpool, the East Midlands and Northwest and Northeast England during the night and afternoon but the Government said there was no damage and few casualties. Saturday night's Nazi attacks were directed against a West England town. (The Germans identified it as Avonmouth.)

BERLIN, Jan. 6 (AP)—Strong Nazi combat formations bombed London during the night and explosions and large fires were observed in the heart of the city, informed German sources said today.

Smaller attacks were directed against factories and airports and vital industries at Hull, Darlington and Lincoln, they said.

No British air activity was reported anywhere in Germany.

DNB (official German news agency) reported a factory at Chelmsford had suffered numerous direct hits in the night's raiding, while near Colchester German planes "effectively" attacked a railway station, switching yards and freight cars.

DNB also said aerial attacks were made on ships trying to reach English East Coast harbors yesterday under the protection of soupy weather.

A ship of 3000 to 4000 tons sailing in a convoy was so severely hit, the report said, that it was left in a sinking condition. Two outposts boats and a 600-ton merchantman also were said to have been "successfully bombed."

The high command said two British planes crashed into the sea off the French coast yesterday in an attempted raid on Nazi-occupied territory.

A submarine previously reported to have sunk 13,300 tons of shipping, the daily communiqué said, "was able to raise its successes to a total of 20,600 tons of enemy cargo space."

PATROLMAN EDWIN ENGEL DIES
AFTER THREE-WEEK ILLNESS

Funeral Services Wednesday for Newstead Avenue District Officer.

Patrolman Edwin Engel of the Newstead Avenue District died at Christian Hospital yesterday of blood clots of the heart and stomach, after a three weeks' illness. He was 36 years old.

In the spring of 1939 he was ill several months after suffering a skull injury when an ambulance in which he was riding with a patient on the way to City Hospital collided with a street car at Fourteenth and Olive streets.

Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Iva Engel, with whom he resided at 6316 Delor street. Funeral services will be at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Oscar J. Hoffmeister Chapel, 4016 Chippewa street, with burial in Sunset Burial Park.

10 Coal Peddlers Arrested in Raids, Charged With Smoke Law Violation

A series of surprise raids by a city weights and measures inspector resulted yesterday in the arrest of 10 small-scale coal dealers, operating in the vicinity of Eighteenth and Wash streets, on charges of sale of high-volatile coal in violation of the city smoke ordinance.

Louis G. Waldman, Commissioner of Weights and Measures, told a Post-Dispatch reporter the raids were decided on after complaints were received from individuals and dealers that a large quantity of Illinois lump coal was being peddled to consumers along Wash, Biddle and nearby streets.

"We decided Sunday would be a good day for a check-up, so my chief inspector, Henry Kessler, started out in his car yesterday morning," Waldman said. "He would trail a truck-load of coal and when he saw a sale made, he would nab the seller. Some of the dealers arrested were selling by the basket, others whole loads."

Kessler also seized samples for testing in each raid. Those arrested were booked at Carr Street Police Station for sale of illegal coal. All were released on bond for appearance in Police Court on Jan. 14, except Robert Mathews, 1820

Waldman said his next move would be toward halting the bootlegging of illegal coal by some consumers living near the city limits who, he said, were buying the fuel from dealers operating in St. Louis County and hauling it to their homes in their own automobiles.

Anchor Tells of Fog — Ship Missed Clearing Peak Near San Diego, Cal., by 20 Feet.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 6 (AP).—Civil and naval officials, inspecting scattered wreckage of a $120,000 navy transport plane, asserted today that had the ship been flying 20 feet higher it would have cleared the rugged Mother Grundy range and reached its destination 20 miles away with all 11 occupants safe.

The investigation of the crash that killed everybody aboard, including the pilot, who had escaped death only Thursday in a Texas bomber mishap. Civilian aviation observers blamed weather conditions.

A low ceiling and dense fog made flying conditions hazardous in the area, 35 miles southeast of San Diego, and reports of neighboring ranchers led to a belief the pilot might have been off his radio beam.

Residents of the Simpson ranch, two miles from White Mountain, the crash scene, said they heard the plane being "gunned" to gain altitude a few moments before they heard an explosion, and this brought the observation that a light off his beam, believing him-

U. S. LICENSING GIVES JAPAN ONLY 25 TONS OF SCRAP METAL IN MONTH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—

JAPAN, previously a substantial purchaser of scrap metal for its war industries, got only 25 tons from the United States during November, the first full month that exports were subject to licensing.

In announcing these figures yesterday the Commerce Department said exports fell off about 70 per cent during the month.

The total was 74,349 tons valued at $1,353,814, compared with 258,928 tons worth $4,860,299 shipped during October and 272,856 tons worth $5,173,374 exported in November, 1939.

Canada and the United Kingdom took all but about 3000 tons of the November total. Japan's 25 tons were tinplate scrap.

self over San Diego because of a zone of silence, might have started down, realized his position and attempted to climb out of danger.

Craft Explodes and Burns.

The craft struck just 20 feet below the ridge, exploded and burned. Wreckage was hurled over the top of the 3000-foot granite summit and scattered over a half-mile area.

The wreckage was found at 7:30 a. m. yesterday, about 13 hours after the crash.

Army cavalrymen, bluejackets and CCC members aided in the seven-hour task of carrying the victims' bodies down the mountain through sagebrush 10 feet high in places.

The big plane, on its way to the naval air station here, carried three members of a board of inquiry appointed to investigate the Texas accident, and the four survivors of that previous mishap. These four had parachuted to safety when their bomber, being ferried from here to Pensacola, Fla., by way of Corpus Christi, Tex., encountered a severe storm. A fifth crew member bailed out but was killed when his parachute failed to open. The pilot and co-pilot risked their lives to ride out the storm and land the ship on a small pond. They ultimately were the only survivors of the seven aboard the bomber.

List of Dead.

The dead: Lieut.-Commander Joseph Henry Gowan, 54 years old, Lead Hill, Ark., pilot; David Everett Ferguson, 38, Neponset, W. Va., co-pilot; Lieut.-Commander Stephen Bland Cooke, 42, Harrison, Ark.; Lieut. Victor S. Gaulin, 34, Lowell, Mass., and Lieut. James Cyril Fleming, 36, Reading, Pa., members of the board of inquiry; Frank Recke Jr., 30, National City, Cal.; L. J. Hughes, 30, Grand Rapids, Mich.; H. E. Neff, 34, San Diego, and A. M. Parry, 31, Los Angeles, survivors of the Texas mishap; and Marvin Magee, 32, Long Branch, N. J., and Frank Richard Naylor, 25, Dayton, Ky., crew members of the wrecked transport plane.

Charles T. Simpson, the rancher who sent out first word of the accident, gave the following account: "My wife and I were finishing supper. It was around 6 o'clock. 'We heard a big airplane's motors, and went out to look. We couldn't see the ship. Fast is, we couldn't rightly see the mountain tops for mist."

"The motor sounded fainter. Then it happened. We heard a crash like a building falling down."

"We can't see the top of White Mountain from my place because there's a crest in the way. But over the crest we could see fire coloring through the mist. I knew the plane had hit White peak."

"We haven't got a telephone. So I got my car and drove to Barrett (a junction five miles distant). I telephoned the Sheriff from there."

A rescue camp was set up at Berger's ranch and parties started up Mother Grundy peak. They didn't find the plane there, but later discovered it on White Mountain.

MAN WITH SHOTGUN KILLS ESTRANGED WIFE IN CHURCH

Holds Off Congregation With His Weapon, But Is Captured in Street.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 6 (AP).—Before the eyes of horrified worshippers, a 35-year-old woman was killed yesterday in St. Andrews Catholic Cathedral by a man who held off the congregation with a shotgun so that he could make his escape.

The dead woman, felled by the second of two shotgun blasts as she ran screaming down a church aisle, was Mrs. Mary Jane McCarthy.

Prosecutor Menno Bolt said William McCarthy, 34, a Detroit salesman and the woman's estranged husband, admitted killing his wife because she had spurned his attempts at a reconciliation. McCarthy was captured a short distance from the church by a passerby.

The latter said he became suspicious when he saw a man leaving the church carrying a shotgun and gave chase.

McCarthy and his wife separated seven weeks ago and a divorce action was pending. They had been married seven years.

FIRE AT ALTAR, MASS GOES ON

Ushers Beat Out Burning Evergreens in Manger Tableau.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 6 (AP).—Father Thomas Gendols celebrated high mass at St. Mary's Catholic Cathedral without interruption yesterday, despite flames that raced up the side of the altar.

The fire started in a manger tableau when a candle ignited dried evergreens and wreaths. Ushers beat out the blaze with umbrellas and threw water on the smoldering altar cloths. The damage was slight.

BIG APARTMENTS LOST BY CENTRAL STATES

Bondholders' Trustees Take Over the Daniel Boone and the Lindell Tower.

Management of the Daniel Boone and Lindell Tower apartments, owned by the insolvent Central States Life Insurance Co. subject to mortgage bonds totaling $838,900, has been taken over by trustees for the bondholders. The buildings are at 3733 and 3743 Lindell boulevard.

Before Central States was taken over by State Insurance Superintendent Ray B. Lucas Nov. 26, the company carried on its books "equities" of $492,091 in the Daniel Boone and $115,644 in the Lindell Tower. Bonds outstanding were $860,900 on the Daniel Boone and $477,100 on the Lindell Tower. However, Insurance Department examiners valued the Daniel Boone at $360,000 and the Lindell Tower at $350,000, wiping out the insurance company's "equities."

E. H. Norton, agent in charge of Central States for Lucas, said the insurance company would no longer receive the 3 per cent management fee it had been charging.

Downs Mohl & Co., Chicago management firm appointed by the bondholders' trustees, has made George Browning of Chicago manager of both buildings. G. W. Heath, auditor of the St. Louis properties managed by Downs Mohl, said he did not know what management fee would be charged.

When the buildings were refinanced in 1935, they were put under a trust agreement which contained the stipulation that if State officials took over management of Central States, the trustees would assume management of the apartments. Within a week after Lucas took control of Central States, the bondholders' trustees notified the company they would take over management of the apartments.

The Daniel Boone, which has 130 apartments, had a gross income of $68,529 and a net income of $3701 in 1939. The 92-apartment Lindell Tower had a gross income of $68,908 and a net deficit of $2020.

ASSERTS FEW ON RELIEF HERE CAN HOPE FOR DEFENSE JOBS

Two-thirds of those receiving general relief in St. Louis and four-fifths of those in the county are unemployed and hence cannot obtain jobs created by the national defense program, Benjamin E. Youngdahl, associate professor of social work at Washington University, said yesterday on the Community Forum program on station KSD.

Moreover, Youngdahl said, most of the employable relief recipients are unskilled, and the primary need of defense industries is for skilled labor. For that reason, he said, the Legislature should not even con-

Record Thompson Regains Lead in Los Angeles Open Golf Tourney

Smith Star Eastern Star Has 211 Score

Two-Stroke Penalty Costs Bulla First Place—Seven Players Are Closely Bunched.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6 (AP).—Once again Jimmy Thompson's long range golf shots dominated the Los Angeles open, but the local slugger from Chico, Calif., was hard pressed to annex his second championship and the top prize of the $10,000 purse as the field pressed closely behind going into the last round of the event today.

Thompson moved into the final 18 holes with a total score of 211, less than seven top-ranking rivals were within four strokes of his slim lead. He had a par 71 yesterday.

The nearest, one stroke behind, was Chicago's Johnny Bulla, who took the lead after the second round and surrendered it yesterday through the combination of a none to good round and a two-stroke penalty imposed when he played at McSpedden's hole instead of his own on the first hole.

Bulla wound up with a 75 for 437, and none too happily said he did not want to discuss the incident further. McSpedden, whose other partner in a threesome was Byron Nelson, declared he knew nothing about the mistake until it was over, and added it was "Bulla's own fault."

Just behind Bulla, with 213, were Denny Shale, the former F. G. A. king now on a comeback after a long layoff, and Willie Goggin, once of San Francisco, now of Miami, Fla., whose 68 was the lowest of yesterday's rain-hampered rounds.

Immediately behind with 214 were Clayton Heafner, Louisville, N. C., and Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y., whose 70 put him back in the running. A shot back were Lawson Little, National Open and defense champion, and Craig Wood, Marquette, N. Y. Little created a stir yesterday when he four-putted the eighteenth green, a record for the tournament.

Four of the front runners, Thompson, Bulla, Wood, and Hogan, have won this tournament before. Shale captured it over this same course under similar damp conditions in 1936. Observers would not be surprised if it winds up in a tie by dawn tonight, something that has not occurred since Vic Ghezzi and Johnny Revolta knotted the stretch finish last year. Heafner led Little by five strokes going into the final round. Little came in with 65, Heafner with a creditable but unsuccessful 71.

WHEAT AND CORN CROPS

WHEAT AND CORN SHOW FRACTIONAL UPTURNS

Dealers attributed some of the market's length to trade interpretations of the president's message to Congress. An upturn in securities and reports of moderate business also had a constructive influence.

Wheat closed $\frac{3}{4}$ @ $\frac{1}{2}$ higher than Saturday; corn $\frac{1}{4}$ @ $\frac{1}{2}$ up; oats, $\frac{1}{4}$ @ $\frac{1}{2}$ higher.

Most of the wheat support was attributed to mills. Reports Spain had concluded arrangements to buy 13,000,000 bushels Argentine wheat.

Buying of corn was attributed to a large commission house. Illinois reports led of heavy demand from feeders, with trucks busy hauling corn South. Rumors Russian and Japanese purchases of large quantities of corn were also mentioned.

STEEL, MOTOR SHARES ARE LEADERS IN STOCK RISE

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP).—The advancing surge persisted in the stock market today and selected issues moved up fractions to a point or more.

While many leaders lingered in narrow territory, assorted specialties were well in front. Dealings were relatively slow, although a few lively intervals put the volume at 720,800 shares.

A little selling cropped up here and there in the final hour and at the close extreme gains were shaded for many early climbers.

Trading almost came to a standstill at 2 p. m., when the President's message to Congress brought to roll of the board-room news tickers. The address, which inspired generally favorable interpretations in brokerage circles, failed to stimulate speculative forces to any great extent, inasmuch as it was about in line with the recent "fireside chat" which denounced the dictators and warned that rearmament and aid to Britain and the democracies must take precedence over all other American activities.

Business prospects, based on the huge defense spending program, brought buying for many stocks. A jump in this week's estimated steel mill operations to a new record peak was viewed as another recovery signal.

International Telephone Co. bonds were strong and the common shares active as the Treasury Department at Washington gave its approval to the sale of the corporation's Rumanian property to the Rumanian Government. Treasury endorsement was necessary because "frozen" funds of Rumania in this country would be used in payment of the $13,800,000 transaction.

Earnings predictions propped a number of individual shares. Among these were Jones & Laughlin preferred, Mack Truck, General Theater Equipment and Savage Arms, all of which went into new high ground for the past year. Up the greater part of the session were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem National Steel, General Motors, Yellow Truck, Woolworth, International Harvester, J. I. Case, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, Philip Morris, U. S. Gypsum, Union Pacific, Great Northern, Western Union, Cerrito de Pasco, American Smelting, International Nickel and American Telephone.

LONDON STOCK MARKET
LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—All groups in the securities market advanced today under the stimulus of British Empire successes in Africa. Gains in British Government bonds ranging to 1/4 point provided a spearhead for the general improvement. The uptick ended in a lull at the session's top levels.

ELECTORAL BALLOT COUNT

Because the law requires it, Congress set aside a half-hour today to count the ballots cast last Dec. 16 by the Electoral College. Left, Col. Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the Senate, removes ballots from box; a clerk passes them to Senator Tom Connally, Rep. George Tinkham (with beard) and Senator Warren Austin (seated), who check them. At rear are Vice-President Garner (left), and Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Case Records

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE R-149: John T., aged 45, is dean of an engineering college.

"We have a man who is receiving his Ph. D. degree in mathematics," he said. "He is really a brilliant fellow in his line. In fact, we might call him a genius. But he wants to teach, and I certainly wouldn't employ him in our college. Indeed, I can't honestly recommend him to anybody else, either. He doesn't have a well-balanced personality. He is so narrowly specialized, that he is ill at ease among people. He doesn't know how to speak in public. He is a social misfit. Though he is a hard worker and means well, he just wouldn't prove to be a good teacher, for he doesn't know enough about psychology to meet the various problems which the students would present to him. After all, a teacher needs an attractive personality in order to put across his ideas most successfully. Don't you agree, Dr. Crane?"

DIAGNOSIS: There are too many of these narrow specialists in the educational field today. They put their classes to sleep because they haven't paid attention to applied psychology. Many of them grow quite incensed at the idea that they should study human behavior. They even make sarcastic remarks about psychology, saying it is not a science at all, but is just a hodge-podge of general observations. The more they fall in life, largely because they don't understand psychology, the more bitterly they condemn psychology. Their associates forge ahead, however, and get the promotions, the better salaries, the prettier girls for wives, or the preferred political offices, chiefly because they know how to apply psychology in daily life.

PERHAPS SOME readers may think I am partial to psychology when I say it is the most important science in life, but calmly consider the facts. If you know people and fully understand how to motivate them, you can build a successful business of any sort. Then you can hire college graduates of engineering schools at $25 per week to do the technical jobs. You can hire straight "A" majors in college English at $20 to $25 per week to handle your office routine and stenographic work. You can hire college graduates who majored in accounting, and get experts for $25 per week, to handle your bookkeeping. This country is flooded with technical experts who gladly sell their services at $25 per week because they don't know psychology. Thus, they wait for an offer and are grateful for almost any job or salary.

YOU CAN'T hire expert applied psychologists, however, at any $25 per week, for your expert psychologists are the heads of the corporations or hold other executive jobs. They know how to influence people and win friends, as well as customers. They know how to win the political offices, too. They can motivate people successfully. You don't have to attend college, however, to become an expert psychologist. In fact, I think a majority of our college professors of psychology don't know how to apply successfully what they teach. To succeed in life, however, you need technical skill, plus. And this "plus" is a keen understanding of human nature, which is psychology. The most successful and happy individuals are expert psychologists, even if they never entered college.

Afraid of People

By Elsie Robinson

SELF-CONSCIOUS? Afraid to meet strangers? Never know what to do or say? Yes, I know how it is. I'm thinking back 30, 40 years, to a girl who was like that—a clumsy, frightened, country girl, "one of the Robinson kids." And I'm feeling yet the numbness of despair that swept over me whenever I was "out in company." The suddenly clammy hands, the big gangly feet, the jagged sob that wedged in my throat as the lonely hours crept along. How dreadful it was to be left out! If I could only be like other people—like the other girls who were having such a heavenly time, laughing, chatting, flirting with miraculous ease. But, of course, I was different. I could never be like the rest of them. Just a big, clumsy old stick-in-the-mud, that's what I was.

Oh, golly, I wished I could die! Maybe if I could die, right off bang, then everybody would be sorry for me and ashamed because they hadn't realized how nice I was. Foolish, frightened little girl, sitting off alone in a corner—how many of you there are! Lonely, bewildered, self-conscious folk sitting in corners all over the world, wishing they could "have a good time like other people." And if they but knew it, they could end their misery in a second, for the source of it lies in their own muddled brains and aching hearts.

WHY ARE we "self-conscious?" Because we're conscious of Self. Now, it's all very well to be conscious of Self if you have the right slant on your Self—but most self-conscious people haven't. For they believe that their Self is different from all other Selves. They believe that they have hurts and handicaps unknown to normal people. Why do they believe this? Partly because they're afraid; partly because they're conceited. Even though it makes us miserable, it flatters our egotism to think we're different. But the consequences are tragic. For, as a result of this belief, self-conscious people build a wall about themselves. They feel that they can never be like other people—that they can never be understood, never speak a common language. Which is, of course, entirely cock-eyed. For none of us is "different." Even geniuses aren't different. Beneath our surface talents or peculiarities, we are all of a piece.

THESE PLEASANT, popular people, who seem to take life and each other so easily beneath the skin are exactly like the miserable, self-conscious folk. They, too, are wondering what it's all about. They, too, feel that no one understands them. They, too, are haunted by unsatisfied dreams, undigested humiliations. But they have learned one great truth. They have learned not to take themselves or their troubles too seriously, because they know that everyone else is in the same boat. And so there is no wall about such people. You can go and come in their spirits, as you would go and come in a well-known room. You are at home with them, for exactly the same reason that you would be at home in that room. You recognize the same old furniture that you also possess, the same walls, the foolish knick-knacks. Why are some people popular? That's why. They, too, are self-conscious, but they are conscious of self in a healthy way. They know that all Selves are essentially alike—that there are no walls between us—that we all speak the same language.

Punishment No Cure for Bad Temper

By Angelo Patri

"SONNY has a violent temper. He screams and kicks, and throws himself on the floor and threatens to do himself harm if we don't allow him to have his way. We can't always give in to him, so what can we do?" Mary Anne has a mean temper. When her sister would not lend her the doll she snatched it, threw it on the floor and stamped it to shreds, and then threw it out of the window. This is what she does any time things go wrong. She really has no reason for it. She had her own doll, for example, a better one than her sister had, but that is what she did. How can I punish her?"

"My son, 17, has a violent temper. The least disappointment, the slightest inconvenience sends him into a rage, and he yells, swears, threatens and upsets the whole place so that servants will not stay and his teachers refuse to have him in their rooms. Just how are we to make him behave? We've tried about everything except locking him up. How would you punish him?"

The first thing most parents and teachers think about when a child loses his temper and acts hysterically is punishment. What to do to him to make him suffer enough to wish to avoid the punishment next time and so hold his temper. That is the way not to begin. Punishment is not the answer here. Bad temper is a symptom of trouble, not the real trouble. To cure the temper one must find the reason the temper rises. Usually the cause lies in some hidden direction toward which nobody has so much as looked. Bad vision is a cause of bad temper because of the strain of trying to see, and failing, brings on unbearable fatigue. Fatigue breaks down control and the temper is born. Poor hearing, poor digestion, insufficient elimination, any physical defect is likely to bring on this unhappy result. The child who stutters is very likely to lose his temper easily because of the strain he is under in trying to make himself understood—the same strain that the other physical handicaps produce.

Pressure of the environment brings on mental fatigue and in its train, bad temper. If there is any member of the family picking on the child, or frightening him, his pressure can bring on this trouble. If a teacher is pressing hard on a child who is failing, or a classmate is bullying him, or if failure in any field is facing a child, he is likely to crack up and fall into a temper tantrum.

Don't bother punishing a child for bad temper until you have examined him and his environment to discover the cause. Find it, remove it, and there will be no bad temper. Instead of scolding and punishing, remove the child to a quiet room and let quiet surround him—quiet of spirit, of atmosphere. Give him a warm bath, soothe him, put him to bed to rest. Don't show impatience, have no anger, treat him for what ails him—fatigue—and search for the cause.

Have the family physician go over him, take a look at the family conditions and advise you. Punishment is not the answer. The right treatment will do the work.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"Knock on Wood!" Why, when bragging about or affirming our good fortune, do we say it—and suit our act to the words?

Why, as a sort of offset of this way of repelling bad luck, do we carry on our persons wooden charms?

The conception may stem back to the days when primitive man worshipped trees because in them were supposed to dwell protective spirits whose aid was solicited by rapping on the bark.

Then again, the practice may be associated with Christ Who died upon a wooden cross.

Hence also wooden crucifixes and rosary beads, which would be touched when making a vow saying a prayer, thus emphasizing the invocation.

Hair Treatment

By Dr. Mary MacFadyen

DON'T JUST PLASTER THE HAIR DOWN ON THE HEAD.

THE BEST BEAUTY TREATMENT FOR THE HAIR IS DAILY BRUSHING AND MASSAGE.

BUT BRUSH UP AND AWAY FROM THE USUAL DIRECTION OF YOUR HAIR-DO.

DAILY SCALP MASSAGE PROMOTES HAIR AND SCALP HEALTH, TOO.

THE best beauty treatment for the hair is daily brushing and massage. Brushing loosens and removes those scalp scales that make such an unpleasant sight when they litter the hair or fall off on the collar. This brushing out of scales and dust stimulates the scalp and makes it cleaner and healthier. Natural oils are distributed through the hair, giving it more gloss and making it more pliable.

The brush should have stiff bristles but not so hard and rigid that they injure the scalp. The bristles should be wide apart, so the brush can more easily reach the scalp between the hairs. Incidentally, the comb should have smooth, blunt teeth so as to avoid scratching the scalp. And wash the comb and brush at least as often as the hair is shampooed.

Spend a few minutes every day giving your scalp and locks a work-out with the brush. But don't be too energetic or you'll bruise your scalp. Don't just plaster the hair down on the head, but brush up and away from the usual direction of your hair-do so that the hair is loose and fluffy and practically standing on end when you have finished.

Don't brush your hair while it is still wet from the shampoo, as this stretches the hairs and makes them brittle. When the dampness is gone, brushing helps remove that after-shampoo dryness by distributing the natural oil through the strands.

Brushing should not be omitted just because you have a new wave. Brushing gives life to hair and should make a wave look even more soft and natural.

Oily hair is no excuse for omitting those licks with the hairbrush. Such hair may need more frequent washing, using a drying shampoo. Does brushing increase the falling of healthy hair? No. It may loosen hairs that are getting ready to fall out, but it's better to catch those falling hairs on your brush than on the shoulders of your dress.

Daily scalp massage promotes hair and scalp health, too. But don't just rub your fingers back and forth over the scalp! Hold the finger tips firmly against the sides of the head and move the scalp itself with the fingers; go over the entire head in this way, kneading slowly. Don't scratch or dig the nails into the scalp.

LA MARSEILLAISE Do not say "luh mahr-sub-LAHZ."

On Aug. 10, 1792, a band of men marched from Marseille (mar-SEH-yuh) to Paris to aid in the revolution. As they entered the city, the streets rang with the words and music of a new and exciting song:

Allons, enfants de la patrie, Come, children of the fatherland, Le jour de gloire est arrive! The day of glory is here!

The electrifying song of the new-comers outstripped the wind, and La Marseillaise was adopted forthwith as the marching song of the revolution. It is still the most stirring of all national airs.

The author was a French captain, Rouget de Lisle (roo-ZHAY duh LEEEL).

Mar-should rhyme with the first syllable of arrogant. The second syllable is like the English word say. The third syllable rhymes with fox and receives the accent. The two "Ts" have the sound of "y."

Correct pronunciation: lah mar-say-YEEZ.

Science Mum About Colds, Says Doctor

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

I HAVE been examining all the latest researches that have been reported from laboratories and clinics on the common cold, and truth to tell there is very little definite to announce. The wise men of our day know about as much as our grandmothers did and little more. There has, for several years, been some study going on at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, some at Harvard Medical School, universities of Minnesota and California.

The cause is generally agreed to be an ultramicroscopic germ or virus which Dochow and his co-workers at the Rockefeller have cultivated on media and by exposing healthy people have produced colds. But as soon as this virus has begun its work, other germs enter the epithelium of the nose and throat and cause most of the symptoms. The common cold, another point on which all are in agreement, is a group of different affections, rather than a single entity.

Environmental factors, such as chilling and drafts, and wet, and fatigue, precipitate a cold only in the presence of the virus. Exposure to other people is the prime factor, and these respiratory infections are very readily communicable. Periodicity of colds does not depend entirely on weather conditions. The "seasons" for colds are the same in Florida and Southern California as in less even climates.

Immunity persists for several months after an attack. What look like recurrences are due to a focus of lymphoid—tonsil or adenoid tissue—that has become infected. Diagnosis of the common cold in children should be made guardedly. What looks like a cold may be the onset of measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, diphtheria or infantile paralysis.

THE ONLY preventive of a cold that meets with approval is reduction of a minimum of contacts with crowds, which is not very practical. "Spraying and gargling are ineffectual." (I quote.) "Vaccines are of limited value." (Again I quote.) Children have fewer colds after the tonsils are out. "Vitamin A is of no preventive value." (I quote.)

Treatments recommended are silver applications to the posterior nose, spraying and gargling, rest in bed, coal tar derivatives (aspirin, phenacetin, acetanilid) for symptomatic relief, sweating, warm drinks, fumes of benzene and menthol. These, taken as I say, from the latest and most modern textbook, are not very cheering, but are the only things that careful scientists are willing to advise. They are certainly not new. They, indeed, are reminiscent of exactly the things my parents got out of the blue-bound family doctor book during the last century.

But it is a good deal better to face the facts than fall for all the high pressure salesmanship we hear about what wonders any particular remedy will perform. The latest pronouncement of science—we hear a good deal about that. Well, I have gone over all the real science there is on the subject, and I can tell you science is pretty mum about colds. I wish it were not so. My readers and I both would be delighted if I were able to proclaim a sure cure. Maybe it will come some year. Meanwhile, it isn't so bad. Colds are not such calamities. Staying in for a day with a good book might really do you quite a bit of good.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

by WYNN

Tuesday, January 7 KEEP up the good work today; push forward on everything you're sure is right. Deal with superiors; use your intellect co-operatively; investigate new ideas and preserve the good ones. Plan as far ahead as possible with applied judgment.

Reason It Out Have you made that list of your definite opinions as suggested here yesterday? If not, you'll be doing yourself a favor if you will do it now. If so, take them up one at a time and try to carry them out. Hang on to it for at least a whole day—longer if you can. The thing to do with it is to find out just where you obtained it. What made you think as you do about it? Why?

Your Year Ahead Your year ahead (from your birthday today) is expansive. Push for deserved results. Make decisions in emotional and new matters. Cultivate inferiors, elders, new acquaintances. Danger: March 1-14; July 23-Aug. 5; Sept. 23-Oct. 13; Nov. 23-Dec. 12.

Wednesday Changes urgently suggest themselves; choose the better ones.

Veal Cutlets Croco Three tablespoons bacon fat, two tablespoons chopped onion, one-fourth cup chopped green peppers, one-fourth cup chopped celery, one-third teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one pound veal cutlet, one-fourth cup flour, two cups tomatoes. Brown onions, pepper and celery in fat heated in a frying pan. Toss vegetables to one side and add and quickly brown on both sides the cutlet cut into serving pieces and sprinkled with the flour. Add other ingredients. Cover and cook an hour over low heat. Turn the veal frequently.

BEWARE NOW OF EPIDEMIC COLDS! Here's Some Good Time-Tested Advice

With folks all around suffering with contagious colds, be just as careful as you can—and you may avoid a lot of sickness, trouble and worry. Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Beware of wet feet and drafts. Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed. AT THE FIRST SIGN OF A SHUFFLE, SNEEZE OR NASAL IRRITATION—put a few drops of Vicks VapoRub on each nostril right away. This helps to prevent many colds from developing, because VapoRub is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds. (If a head cold causes stuffiness, you'll find that a few drops of VapoRub helps clear the clogging mucus and makes breathing freer and easier.) IF A CHEST COLD OR COUGHING ONSET DEVELOPS (some colds get by all precautions) depend on Vicks VapoRub to relieve misery. Rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back and cover with a warm cloth. VapoRub acts to bring relief 2 ways at once. It stimulates surface of chest and back like a warming poultice. At the same time it releases helpful medicinal vapors that are breathed direct into the irritated air passages. Both VapoRub and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting, you are not taking needless chances. Remember: If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment—or if your family physician indicates a serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks VapoRub and a jar of Vicks VapoRub today.

Dear Martha Carr:

... HAVE been going steady with a boy for almost a year. When we first started going together I didn't like him, but mother said, so I went with him to please her. About a week ago he told me he doesn't love me any more. I used to laugh when he said he loved me, but now that he has told me otherwise, I find that I love him. I made a big mistake, at the end in telling him so. He wants to be friends, but not go steady. I couldn't bear that. I have seen him with the girl he used to go with before he started dating me, and he used to tell me he wouldn't be seen with her. I've thought I would go out with others, but it seems I just can't. If I did it wouldn't be to them; if I don't, he will think I can't. What shall I do? He came down to see me the other night and acted like he was going to start going together again, stood there with tears in his eyes, but my pride won't let me ask him why he quit me, though he told me it was because he didn't love me any more. What can I do?

... Think back over that last meeting, and see if you can recall something you said or did which may have hurt this boy friend's feelings. Perhaps he finally decided you did not love him, so he thought he would tell you first, that he had stopped loving you, and end the matter. He evidently still has some interest in you, or he would not have returned in so sad a frame of mind. And if he really loves you, he will return again. In the meantime, the worst thing you can do is show your feelings as much by avoiding all gaiety and refusing to date other fellows. You do not need to start going steady with anyone. Just get out with one and another as the opportunity arises. If you will care for the boy and feel he cares for you, forget your pride, and when occasion offers, ask him what you did to hurt him, and apologize.

... IN ANSWER TO "J. K.," "F. C. S.," "American Citizen" and the others who have inquired regarding army and navy engagements and the like: You would do better to get your information first hand by calling the U. S. Army Recruiting Office and the U. S. Navy Recruiting Office. You will find them listed in the telephone book.

... Dear Mrs. Carr: PLEASE EXPLAIN to me what is meant by "pinned"; going steady; engaged. If a girl wears a fellow's class ring, for instance, does this necessarily mean they are engaged.

... When a girl is "pinned" to a boy, it means she is wearing a fraternity pin and going exclusively with him. This does not necessarily mean an engagement; it depends on the agreement between the two, and whether or not the rules of the fraternity permit the wearing of its pin by a girl not engaged to a member of that fraternity. "Going steady" means that the boy and girl agree to go only with each other—until further notice, as it were. "Engaged" means the two have definitely decided to marry each other. Wearing a class ring may mean anything the couple wants it to mean, but does not necessarily mean an engagement.

... IN ANSWER TO "Ken": I feel sure that when you have recovered from your first grief and the terrible blow to your heart, your love and your pride, you will realize that you really made a very lucky escape. Any man who will treat you as you are, one did, shows himself unworthy of you in every sense of the word. Working so close to him makes things doubly bad. If you can't endure it, seek other employment, but be sure of another job before you let this one go, for you evidently have your mother also to consider. You have high ideals, hold them; and above all, don't allow yourself to lose your faith in all men just because one man has proved himself a scoundrel.

... Dear Mrs. Carr: I AM A BOY, age 24 and went with a girl of 19 for eight and one-half months. We grew very fond of each other, but never mentioned love. When she went out of town for a while, I missed her very much, though we always corresponded. When she returned, I was going steady with another girl whom I like a lot, but don't love. I miss the first girl very much and am told by a mutual friend that she still cares for me and doesn't do much dating because of that. She wrote me a letter after she came home and I never answered it. What shall I do?

... If you are still so fond of the first girl, and are not engaged to the second, I see no reason why you can't patch things up and be friends once more. Simply drop her a line, or phone and ask her for a date, or take care to be somewhere you know she will be, and renew your acquaintance. Remember that has been said about faint hearts and fair ladies, and change right in.

... DEAR MRS. POST: LEASE tell me whether it is polite for people to ask a bride and groom where they are going on their wedding trip? And since they do ask such a question, whether or not it is polite, what may a bride and groom answer so as not to appear rude and at the same time not divulge plans that they want to keep to themselves?

... Answer: The proper way to put this question is, "Are you telling us where you are going?" But when people ask bluntly, I am sure they do it unthinkingly and with no thought of prying into the bride and groom's private affairs. Sometimes the bride and groom don't mind telling—especially when they are going on a very long trip. But when they would rather not, it is never rude to answer, "It's a secret."

... DEAR MRS. POST: Is one supposed to tip a riding instructor, or may one even if it is not necessary?

... Answer: I would say no—not unless you know that this particular instructor is accepting tips from other people.

Their 'Deaths' Brought Them Screen Fame

It's Hollywood Tradition That Any Actor Who Plays Realistic Death Scene in Movies Is Headed Up the Ladder to Success in Films.

By Harold Heffernan

... HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6. ONCE you get the chance to act in Hollywood pictures your next goal, by all means, should be a death scene.

Why? Because, if you "die like a dog" your career is apt to be long and prosperous. The records, at least, point that way. Die-your-way-to-fame is a Hollywood superstition of long standing, and down through the years it has paid off in heavy dividends.

A newcomer, Veronica Lake, 20 and blond, comes to a violent end in the aviation thriller, "I Wanted Wings." But she has a brief deathbed scene to precede her "passing," and it is packed with considerable drama.

Ignorant of Hollywood tradition, the girl almost wept when told about her pictorial death sentence. "My first big opportunity in pictures and I have to die!" she moaned.

Old-timers shook their heads and smiled. Little did Veronica realize under what promising auspices her screen career was getting underway. She could, if she were old enough, look back through the years and find that in almost every case a screen death has done wonders for the "dying" actor or actress.

The tradition started back in 1914, when David Wark Griffith presented "The Birth of a Nation," first important feature-length production. In that picture, Mae Marsh, pursued by a villain, leaped to a ghastly death over a cliff. And Wallace Reid, playing a swarthy young blacksmith in the same picture, came to a violent death in a heroic battle with hoodlums.

Miss Marsh thus began a career that lasted 20 years. And Wally Reid at the time of his death in 1922 was the best-known star on the screen.

Rudolph Valentino, in turn, died-to-fame as the tragic hero of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." His performance, mainly his death in that movie, made him famous throughout the world.

In recent years, dying on the screen has had the same telling effect on players' careers. Jimmy Cagney wasn't getting anywhere until his gangster role in "Public Enemy"—and the horrible death scene that ended that film. Shot to death by rivals, Jimmy's corpse, wrapped in burlap, was placed upright against the door of his home. His killers then rang the doorbell. Similarly, George Raft got his real start by dying admirably in "Scarface."

Among other moderns who subscribe to the death-scene principle of self-advancement is Robert Preston, whose career has come along in leaps and bounds during the past two years. Preston has died heroic deaths no less than three times—in "Union Pacific," "Beau Geste" and most recently in Cecil B. de Mille's "Northwest Mounted Police."

Spencer Tracy dies now and then with beneficial results. Audiences weep copiously and rush to see his next picture. His nearest demise came when he crashed with Clark Gable in "Test Pilot," and died in Clark's arms. Tracy's box office receipts leaped immediately.

The latest to essay the most famous of all death vehicles, "Camille," Greta Garbo died beautifully before the camera.

Illustrated is a cleverly designed cardigan of knit wool with three-quarter length sleeves which you can push up with a casual air. The collarless neckline can be buttoned close to the throat but it looks especially swanky when left open.

Note how brief this cardigan is—not much longer than the snug-fitting little slip-on sweater which is beneath it. Such shades as magenta, redware, navy blue-ware, yellow, gray, blue and beige indicate the range of colors.

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND ROSE TO STARDOM AS A RESULT OF HER DEATHBED SCENE IN "GONE WITH THE WIND."

anguished Armand (Robert Taylor) in 1936—with results fairly pleasing to the box office.

The picture that made the fan world conscious of Bette Davis and elevated her to stardom was "Of Human Bondage." Bette's death scene in that film practically turned the trick by itself. Bette has screened several times since, but never so effectively as in "Dark Victory."

That was a brilliant passing—perhaps the most effective the screen has ever known. And it would have won her an Academy award last March had it not been for the unprecedented surprise triumph of Vivien Leigh in "Gone With the Wind."

Come to think of it, the big death scene in "GWTW," that of Melanie Wilkes, turned a nine-run feature player, Olivia de Havilland, into a star of the first rank. Melanie's death was no sudden affair, but ran on and on, while one close friend and relative after another tiptoed into her chamber to listen to a series of "last words." Olivia held the tragic suspense so well that stardom was her immediate reward.

"Little Caesar" was the first of the hoodlum epics and it introduced to the screen Edward G. Robinson, who is going great guns today. The really big scene in Robinson's opener was his death and the famous line it brought forth: "Mother of Mary, is this the end of Rico?" Robinson arose from that to be hailed as a gangster "find."

Propped up in bed, Charles Boyer delivered a six-minute death speech in "All This and Heaven, Too." The fans loved every guttural word of it. Make-believe death winged Lew Ayres and John Garfield to the heights faster than any other tragedy-marked players. Unforgettable is the fadeout scene of the first "All Quiet on the Western Front."

A German youth, played by Ayres, raises his head above the parapet and sees a butterfly floating within arm's length. He reaches out to clutch it. The shrill whistle of a sniper's bullet crackles through the still morning air. The muscles of the hand contract and slowly withdraw in death. That scene made Ayres a star.

IT'S surprising what novelty you can introduce into your fruit desserts by combining two or even more of the most familiar canned fruits. This pineapple peach crisp, so easily prepared, so delicious to eat, is a good example. The buttered bread strips on top and bottom give crispness and body to the dish, without making it anything but a light fruit dessert, suitable after the heartiest meal.

Pineapple Peach Crisp. Four slices bread, two tablespoons butter, one-third cup brown sugar, No. 1 tin crushed pineapple, one-half cup canned sliced peaches, two tablespoons shredded almonds. Toast bread, cut in squares or strips and spread both sides lightly with butter. Place half of the buttered toast strips on the bottom of a shallow eight-inch square tin. Sprinkle toast with half of the sugar, spread pineapple and peach slices over the mixture and top with almonds and remaining sugar. Cover with remaining bread squares and bake in a moderate hot oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 35 minutes. Serve with top milk if desired. Serves four.

MENUS FOR TUESDAY. Breakfast. Stewed figs, one-fourth pound dried figs, sugar; soft cooked eggs, three eggs, seasonings; orange toast, five slices bread, butter, one orange, sugar; coffee, four tablespoons coffee (adults only); milk for child.

Luncheon. Cream of tomato soup, No. 1 tin tomatoes, two sprigs parsley, whole clove, one-half bay leaf, one slice onion, one teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups thin white sauce (use one cup evaporated milk and one-half cup water); crackers, one-eighth pound salted soda crackers; pear salad, No. 1 tin pear halves, one.

Dinner. Cream of tomato soup, No. 1 tin tomatoes, two sprigs parsley, whole clove, one-half bay leaf, one slice onion, one teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups thin white sauce (use one cup evaporated milk and one-half cup water); crackers, one-eighth pound salted soda crackers; pear salad, No. 1 tin pear halves, one.

Cost for day: About $1.35.

Declarer Set When He Fails To Alter Plan

By Ely Culbertson

NO one would think much of a general who refused to change his tactics to meet unexpected developments. The same may be said of a declarer. A perfectly sound plan often must be altered when unforeseen difficulties arise in the course of play. Note today's deal.

South, dealer. East-West vulnerable. Rubber bridge.

♠ A 8
♥ K 6 4 2
♦ K 10 7 5 2

♠ K J 10 9 7
♥ A J 10 8
♦ None
♣ J 9 7 3

The bidding:
South 1 diamond 1 spade 3 no trump Pass
West 1 diamond 1 spade 3 diamonds Pass
East 1 diamond 1 spade 3 diamonds Pass

West opened the jack of spades. Dummy ducked and declarer won with the queen. On the surface, the contract seemed to be in the bag with five diamond tricks, two spades, and two clubs, hence declarer would not even need a heart trick. The cashing of the diamond ace, however, brought the annoying news that East had the suit stopped. Declarer mumbled an impression, the translation of which would have been "O, well, what can I do about it?" and doggedly continued diamond leads in order to clear the suit. East took the fourth round (West meanwhile discarding three clubs and one heart) and returned the eight of spades. Dummy's ace won and the established fifth diamond was duly cashed, but declarer had nary a chance for the all important ninth trick. When he tried to establish a heart trick, West jumped in with the ace and ran off three good spades.

The moment the diamond situation was revealed declarer should have seen the urgent necessity for changing his plan of play. It required no great analytical ability to foresee that immediate establishment of the diamond suit, which involved giving East the lead, would risk a spade return which would establish West's suit. Then, since the heart ace was virtually marked in West's hand because of his spade overcall, West would have an entry for the cashing of his long spades. There was a very simple method by which this manifest danger could be avoided.

That was to remove West's outside entry, the heart ace, before it could become really valuable. Thus, after cashing the diamond ace and noting the bad break, declarer should have shifted immediately to the heart queen. The defenders then would have been helpless.

If East took his ace and shifted back to spades, declarer would be in no danger. He could clear the diamond suit at his leisure and East would have no spade left with which to put West on lead. If East did have another spade, West's spade suit would be only four cards long and hence constitute no danger. If East refused to take the heart queen, declarer, with the vital heart trick safely under his belt, then would shift back to diamonds and establish his ninth trick in that suit.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

ANDY was happily fussing. "In his Globe Theater version, Thomas Wood Stevens cuts out Romeo's 'They pray, grant thou lest faith turn to despair.' That spoils the sextet. That first duet of Romeo and Juliet's a sonnet, you know. Oh, you didn't? Well, neither did I, till yesterday. Well, what do you think, darling? I value your judgment so much—"

"So much that—look, Andy, please! I guess I've got to be a bold wench. You know—like Juliet. I want a job. Won't you please give me a reading, too? For anything from the Prince to the wardrobe mistress!"

"Darling! I'm so ashamed! As a matter of fact I was going to talk with you about that, but it slipped my mind, what with the telephone calls from classmates and creditors and cousins and all the nasty words beginning with C. I thought last summer that you were the only student that had much possibility. You need training. But then, so do I, and we'll hope to get it on one-night stands with Romeo and friends. The play's mostly cast, now that we've got Zed; there's only Benvenuto, and a triple of the Apothecary and Sampson and Second Watchman for some poor overworked ham, and Juliet's understudy—who'll also play Mercutio's page. I've read about a dozen ravishing young maidens for that last part, but I haven't decided—Yes. Read Juliet. And you better be good!"

The waiter had taken out the table. The room, in the 37th story of the Hotel Picardy, was quiet. Andy thrust the Romeo script into her nervous hands, switched on an electric heart fire vastly more real than clumsily burning wood, and flopped out on the couch in beefy elegance. She got herself a small coffee table and a straight chair, laid out the script, leaned over it with her cheeks in her hands and began to read. She became fairly calm. This was not a manager considering her for a job; it was her friend, almost her worshiped idol, Andy Descon. She was calm enough to forget him entirely as she read, "O gentle Romeo, if thou dost love, pronounce it faithfully." Her reading had no particular "modernity," no discernible link with Freud and Adler.

the counter of an old, cheap restaurant that was lined with pressed tin, so that she felt as if she were cooped in an old tin packing case. And she sipped the coffee, which managed to be at once weak and bitter, she was still hotly reading Romeo and Juliet.

FOR the five days of waiting before rehearsals, Andy's apartment was her home, her temple. He seemed to like having her about; occasionally he kissed her cheek, though in an entirely absent-minded way and usually during a discussion, explosively carried on with from two to a dozen persons, as to whether Romeo, the blighter, should ever carry a tennis racket. Regularly he insisted that she stay for lunch and dinner, at which you met a cross section of New York, London and Central Europe, none of them particularly invited to stay but none of them ever disinvited.

With no very definite arrangement, she became assistant secretary to Miss Sally Carpet, and by a judicious combination of her small shorthand and her large memory, she was able to take 50 letters a day—most of which began, "Dear Joe, When I arrive in Palace City with my show—oh, hell, Beth, never mind; I'll phone him, long distance, this evening."

Miss Carpet accompanied her when, with the grandeur of a real theatrical contract in her pocket, she went to join the Actors' Equity Association. . . . The secretary at Equity seemed perfectly calm about it.

The apartment became hourly more disordered and insane. On the grand piano was a heap of scenery sketches, letters, script pages, theatrical pages torn out of newspapers, and proofs of advertisements. At any moment you saw Andy emerging from his bedroom in a maroon dressing gown over crimson silk pajamas; Zed Wintergeist sitting up on the rail of the balcony, legs dangling over the abyss, eating two ice-cream cones in succession; a completely strange man in morning coat and striped trousers, sitting vacantly hot and seemingly having no purpose in life except to hold derbies; and Adrian Satori asleep five feet away from a poker game conducted by Andy, Zed, Tudor, Mahala and the stage manager—a competent standard-sized person named Nathan Eldred.

There were long conferences with a professor from Swarthmore, changing the names of Shakespeare's weapons, so that Benvenuto's "put up thy sword" became "put down your flats," and old Capulet cried not for his "long sword" but for his "oak stick." During these solemnities Bethel and her typewriter retreated farther and farther, until one afternoon she quite happily put in two hours typing with the machine resting on a chair up in Andy's bathroom, while Iris Pentire was being helpful by sitting on the edge of the bathtub and repowdering her nose.

Iris was not there so often, but her ways were simple and pleasing; she rather hoped to lure Andy away from Mahala, and she crisply intended to win Zed Wintergeist. And to Bethel's innocent astonishment, that hard-minded image breaker was easily beguiled by Iris' faint wise smile. Whenever Zed had denounced Andy for producing merely another pretty version of Romeo, he looked in relief to Iris' cool magic and invited her out for a drink.

But on Andy, Iris' designs were idiotic. Mahala had claimed him again. She paraded him, in chains of taffy, before all the new audience—Satori and Schnable and Zed and Mrs. Boyle—as her very own. So far as Bethel could tell, Andy was never so incautious as to mutter anything to Mahala about the gallows march to the altar. He merely said to Mahala that she was a greater actress than Rejane.

more beautiful than Diana Manners, and that it was a shame for her to spoil such incomparably beautiful slim hands with crimson nails like lobster claws. But Mahala incessantly patted him, took his arm, smiled at him apropos of his observation that the weather was colder today, hummed at him, looked up at him, looked up at him—Bethel sighed, "That female floorwalker will capture Andy, and Iris will seduce Zed—not such a complicated campaign, I'm beginning to think—and even if Mrs. Boyle falls dead—I hope it won't be serious, but I hope it will be soon—and I play Juliet, I'll still be left with only Tudor Blackwell and Doc Keeser for beaux. Oh, this is going to be a crusade of mud and glory."

She watched the end of the casting. The last stroke was an error. Andy was so sick of rejecting applicants, of condemning them to starvation again, that when Mr. Wyndham Nooks proved, in reading the three parts of Apothecary, Sampson and First Watchman, that at least he could pronounce the English language, Andy sighed, ignored Adrian Satori's wildly growing disapproval and blurted, "All right, Mr. Nooks, you can have the part, if you'll take fifty a week. Okay? Go in and see my secretary, Miss Carpet, about your contract."

Before midnight, well berated by Satori, he was groaning, "Oh, I know it. I was tired. My foot slipped. I've gone and wished a real ham onto the company. Well, that may be a good thing—the rest of us saved souls will have some bodies besides Mrs. Boyle to hate." Mr. Wyndham Nooks was portly, basso, slow and sentimental and he quoted poetry—preferably Milton and Eddie Guest—in answer to a request for a match. As a strip-tease, in Tennessee, he had been a Fundamental Baptist preacher. There were two schools of thought as to why he had suddenly left this high calling.

He claimed to be 60; he had acted, or enacted acting, for 35 years. He had been in medicine shows, in Tom shows, in pick-up companies playing Shakespeare and Dumas through the Southwest; he had been drunk with some of the richest cowmen in Oklahoma and in their homes had recited "Gunga Din." He had starred after his first venture to New York, but then had fallen into a good line of business doing congressmen and pompous clergymen—though he never did quite understand why audiences laughed so much when he delivered sentiments which he felt to be elegant and noble.
